ISSUE OF STATE RIGHTS

Question of Whether Business
Is Local or National in Character

Washington—Added impetus to the movement of recent years to obtain congressional action with reference to the regulation of rates on electric power has been given by the decision of the supreme court of the United States rendered this week in the case involving a Rhode Island corporation supplying electric current to a Massachusetts company distributing the same to the consumer.

The text of the opinion rendered by Justice Sanford when analyzing the decision of the supreme court in the case of the Rhode Island corporation supplying electric current to a Massachusetts company distributing the same to the consumer.

Broadly speaking, the public utility business has been conducted on the theory that the various state commissions have the right to regulate rates and that in the few instances of interstate connection, the problem is local rather than national.

LOCAL QUESTION

"The test of the validity of a state regulation," says the supreme court, "is not the character of the general business of the company, but whether the particular business which is regulated is essentially local or national in character." It is the regulation of the business which is the test, not the character of the business.

MAY NEED STATUTE

Thus it will be seen that some federal statute to cover the interstate rate question may be found necessary unless there is continuous agreement between companies engaged in interstate business. The public utility industry is opposed to federal control of rates, believing that the problem is for the most part local or rather regional and that they can be handled equitably by the states in cooperation with each other.

SOME MEASURE looking toward the legalizing of state cooperation may be devised as a way out but the latest decision of the supreme court indicates that orders by one state commission on the consumers in another state cannot be made effective even though it means the transmission of the current up to the boundary line of a state and no further. The supreme court in affirming the decision of the lower court set aside the order of the interstate commission in the Kansas case company case which involved the sale of natural gas by continuous pipe lines from wells in Oklahoma and Kansas into Missouri.

COURT'S DECISION

"In holding that the rate which the company charged," said Justice Sanford, "for gas sold to the distributing company was not subject to regulation by the Public Utilities Commission of Missouri, the court said that while in the absence of congressional action a state may generally enact laws of internal police powers, although they have an indirect effect on interstate commerce, the commerce clause of the constitution, of its own force, restrains the states from imposing direct burdens on interstate commerce and a state enactment imposing such a direct burden must fall, being a direct restraint of which in the absence of federal legislation, the state is not competent to pass."

It is expected that the question hardly will come before the present session of congress for decision though discussion is not improbable.

WOODS ADMITS HE OWNS HOLDINGS IN RAILROADS

Washington—(AP)—Cyrus E. Woods, nominated by President Coolidge for the Interstate Commerce commission, told a senate committee Thursday that he had holdings of nearly $200,000 in railroad and coal companies.

Replying to Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, Woods said:

"Of course, I shall divest myself of all of these bonds and stock holdings, as required by law if I go on the commission."

EXECUTE 3 MEN
FOR MURDER OF MAN IN HOLDUPLarge Crowd Awaits Outside of Walls in Boston as Murderers Die

Boston—(AP)—Three men were electrocuted at the state prison here early Thursday for a single murder.

Edward J. Heinelein, John J. Devereaux and John J. McLaughlin went to the electric chair for the murder of James H. Farnau, a night watchman, during a holdup in a Waltham car barn on Oct. 25, 1925.

As the 18 witnesses who watched the execution were filing into the death house, attorneys were nearing the end of their unsuccessful attempts to stay the execution.

Heinelein stepped calmly into the death chamber at three minutes past midnight.

Devereaux, who admitted on the witness stand that he shot and clubbed the watchman to death, was the second to die. McLaughlin was in the chair less than two minutes after Devereaux's body had been removed and at 22 minutes past 12 he had joined his companion in death. Noise faltered as he entered the chamber. Each repeated, phrase by phrase the words of the prison chaplain's prayer.

TUNNEY AGREES TO DEFEND HIS TITLE

Champion to Sign Contract
With Tex Rickard for Fight
After July 1

St. Louis—(AP)—Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, Thursday agreed to defend his title against any contender selected by Tex Rickard, promoter, for what was declared to be the largest guarantee ever made for a fight.

The contract was signed at 12:30 Thursday afternoon. The agreement is reported to call for a flat guarantee of $400,000 for Tunney, and 20 per cent of the net proceeds over $1,000,000. The percentage is expected to net Tunney as much or more than Dempsey received in the Philadelphia encounter.

Rickard is to host $100,000 by Jan. 11, and another $100,000 May 1. He is to announce Tunney's opponent not later than Jan. 15.

Rickard has several candidates in mind to oppose the champion. Among them are Jack Dempsey, former title holder, Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Jim Maloney and Paul Berlenbach.

ANOTHER EARTH SHOCK
FELT IN CALIFORNIA

Calistoga Calif.—(AP)—A sharp earthquake at 8:45 Thursday morning shook a night of several lesser tremors, startled residents of Calistoga and Mexico, across the international line, but apparently did no damage. Six light shocks occurring during the night shook buildings, damaged or weakened in the series of heavy quakes here last Saturday and Sunday. The rolling shock Thursday morning, the seventh in 14 hours, was the heaviest since the major shocks which marked the beginning of the seismic disturbances last week.

Reports from 21 Central, largest city in the Imperial valley, said the shock morning was moderately heavy but no damage was reported.

New York—(AP)—A prince who would rather hunt lions than be one is visiting New York. The fourth member of royalty to visit this country in the last year, Prince William of Sweden is here as a private citizen. His welcome was probably the most informal ever accorded a member of a reigning European family.

Six feet four inches in height, the prince, who is a sailor, explorer, sportsman, also described himself as a "self-made man." He is the second son of the king of Sweden and younger brother of the crown prince, who came here last summer.

His chief interests are big game hunting, aviation, literature and the drama. He is the author of several books, short stories, a book of poems and an unproduced play. And he likes to play poker. As to his possible lionizing by society during his visit here, the prince said: "No, I would rather hunt a lion than be one." His prince is to make a lecture tour on a recent hunting trip in Africa. He is not a dancer.

"I'm not very good at it," he explained, "too tall, I suppose."

"What is a he man," he asked when he heard himself so described.

Prince William does not accept a bounty from the Swedish government. He depends upon his writing and lecturing for a living. He is the editor of one paper and dramatic critic of another.

Cleanup Made Recently at Hurley

Marshfield—(AP)—Duplicating the recent cleanup of Hurley, deputy United States marshals Thursday were serving temporary restraining orders on eight saloons and bars and were under way to have warrants for a score of persons on charges of violating the Volstead act.

The arrests Thursday and padlocking of the saloons and roadhouses followed the action of Federal Judge C. Z. Luse, who signed the order at Superior, Dec. 29. The license was made on the request of Stanley M. Ryan, Jansville, United States district attorney for the western district of Wisconsin.

The cleanup of Marshfield follows closely on the padlocking of 23 of 24 saloons and bars and were under way to have warrants for a score of persons on charges of violating the Volstead act.

HOLD 2 OFFICERS FOR MURDER OF FARMER

Luverne, Ala.—(AP)—John Lord, town marshal of Brantley, and Walker Thomas, his deputy, faced charges of murder Thursday as a result of the death of Oscar Brooks, 45, farmer. The officers admit they shot Brooks when he tried to prevent the removal of a gallon of whiskey from his home, according to Sheriff Jack McQueen, who arrested them. They had no search warrant when they entered the home, Mrs. Brooks said.

LOEB AND LEOPOLD TRY TO ESTABLISH ALIBIS

Joliet, Ill.—(AP)—Attempts to establish alibis as to the whereabouts of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb on the night they are charged with kidnapping and murdering Charles Ream, Chicago taxicab driver, occupied the defense Thursday in a $100,000 damage suit against the boys. Both were on stand and denied they had ever seen Ream before or had been in the neighborhood the night Ream said he was attacked.

Samuel Leopold, Nathan's brother, testified that there had been a birthday party at the Leopold home the night of Nov. 19, 1925, when the taxi-driver was murdered. He said dinner at 7 o'clock had been followed by a card game, the party breaking up about 12:30. Samuel remembered the party, he testified, because it was the last birthday celebration given for Nathan.

After the guests departed, Samuel and Nathan retired, both occupying the same room, the older brother said. They occupied the same room for eight years.

BUTLER SAYS
DRY LAW ONLY
FOR POOR MANFoe of Illicit Alcohol Changes Mind on Enforcement of Volstead Act

Oakland, Cal.—(AP)—Brigadier General Smedley D. Butler, distinguished soldier and foe of illicit alcohol, who spent months fighting graft and bootleggers as director of public safety of Philadelphia, has changed his mind about the Volstead law.

Speaking before a luncheon club here, the commander of the marines on the Pacific coast denounced the prohibition statute as class legislation, saying it renege against the poor man and favored the rich one. Its principal demerit, he indicated, is the manner in which enforcement has grown out of it.

General Butler declared in his address Wednesday that he originally believed the Volstead act was written to apply to everybody, but that he has discovered that such is not the case.

"PLENTY FOR RICH

"There is plenty to supply the demand for vice and corruption in the upper crust," but the poor man is left with nothing," the general asserted. "When the American people give a man the task of enforcing a law, I, as a dyed-in-the-wool marine, conceive it that they mean it shall be enforced. Maybe I didn't finish learning to read, but I got into the marine corps, but I read this fool Volstead act as intended to apply to everybody."

"It appears, however, that all it is supposed to do is to keep liquor away from persons without influence, and doesn't apply at all to those with influence and the money to pay for it. It's a case of enforcing the law in some places and blurring and enforcement in others."

FORD AGAIN ASKED TO PROVE CHARGES

New York Representative Demands Evidence on Control of Reserve System

Washington—(AP)—Dissatisfied with a reply to his first letter, Representative Sol Bloom of New York, renewed his demand upon Henry Ford Thursday in a second communication to substantiate the charge made in his publication, the Dearborn Independent, that the federal reserve system is controlled by the international Jew.

W. J. Cameron of the Dearborn editorial staff, in reply to his first letter to Mr. Ford said:

"This is to say that your letter of Dec. 23 has been received and its contents noted. We thoroughly agree with you that 'our government's' finances should be entirely free from any vestige of alien domination, regardless of individualities, of race, country, creed, group or any other affiliations."

"ASKS FOR PROOF

"This is not an answer to my letter; still less an answer from you," Bloom said in his letter Thursday. "While appreciating Mr. Cameron's courtesy, what I asked is your proof that the federal reserve system is internationally controlled, as you charge."

"I am aware that the Dearborn Independent is published under your name, but it is quite without standing, except as your mouth-piece. I am aware also that much of the printed matter, which appears with your ostensible indorsement is quite new to you when officially called to your attention."

"I engaged a publicity agent has taken the liberty of committing you to asserting what you know nothing about, you did make this charge. You say, too, that you have evidence to substantiate it. You seem reluctant to place such evidence before congress. In any event I am determined not to let your charge drop until it is substantiated or disproved."

New York—(AP)—A share in the $2,000,000 estate of Lewis W. Minford, sugar broker of Dea, N. J., has been refused by his daughter, Grace Minford, a nun, because she believes her reward will be infinitely greater.

A clause in his will filed for probate Wednesday would permit her to share equally with two other sisters and a brother, provided she renounce her faith, but this she says she will not do.

"My Heavenly Father is richer far than was my own father," she said when informed of the contents of the will, "and my reward shall be far greater."

Miss Minford in 1909, at the age of 21, became a sister of the Dominican order, against the wishes of her father, who was a Protestant. She said she knew at the time she would be disinherited. She is now in the monastery of the Dominican sisters in Newark, N. J.

CHURCH WEDDING

New York—(AP)—A sudden switch of plans that left a large crowd waiting at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church while William Ziegler, Jr., young bailing partner, and Miss Helen Murphy of Troy, N. Y., were married at the Hotel Plaza, remained unexplained Thursday.

The church chapel was decorated with flowers and many guests had arrived for the wedding, scheduled for 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when it was announced that the bride and groom would not appear. Later it was learned they had been married at the Hotel Plaza. Neither Mr. Ziegler nor his bride would comment.

ZIMMERMAN NAMES
NEW DANE-CO JUDGE

Frank L. Gilbert Succeeds A. G. Zimmerman, Elected Circuit Judge

Madison—(AP)—Frank L. Gilbert, prominent Madison attorney and former attorney general of Wisconsin, was Thursday named by Governor Fred E. Zimmerman as judge of the Dane county court. Mr. Gilbert will succeed A. G. Zimmerman, judge of the county court for the last 25 years, who resigned to take his place on the bench as junior judge of the Ninth judicial district of the circuit court, to which he was elected last spring when he defeated Herman W. Sachtlein, former state prohibition commissioner and Henry Casson, Madison attorney.

Sachtlein was appointed circuit court judge by Governor Blaine following the resignation of E. Ray Stevens, who was elected to the state supreme court. Judge Zimmerman was seated as a circuit judge Thursday morning.

In accepting the appointment, Mr. Gilbert said he would not consider the place if it involved a long period of absence from his home, which he considered a candidate for the office at the April election when a new judge will be selected.

"The appointment of Mr. Gilbert," Governor Zimmerman said, "will give the voters an opportunity to express their choice for that office free from any influence which an executive appointment might have."

Washington, D. C.—Mail bandits have obtained $54,310.56 from robberies in the state of Wisconsin, since the end of the fiscal year June 30, 1921, of which no part has been recovered, according to a report filed by Postmaster General New with Representative W. W. Grist, Republican, Pennsylvania, chairman of the house committee on postoffice and post roads.

The report also states that there have been four arrests in connection with the robberies, with one case yet to be tried and one prisoner given a term of one year. The data was given to Representative Grist in connection with his measure introduced in the house to provide for a civilian mail guard.

The Wisconsin robberies were as follows:

SHEBOYGAN, Oct. 17, 1925, postoffice, no arrests, loss $141,362.82, with no part recovered.

The report further cites: "Since Oct. 20, 1926, when marines were assigned to guard the mails, 2,000 riot guns have been loaned by the war department for their use."

Two thousand five hundred marines have been detailed to guard the mails. To date 31 commissioned officers and 2,303 marines have been assigned making a total of 2,334 men.

"Relative to establishing a guard composed of civilians, assuming that the number of civilian guards, the rate allowed postal clerks when in travel status, the cost of maintenance would be $1,147,500, or a grand total of $5,647,500 per annum. The estimate does not take into account annual and sick leave for the 2,500 men."

"I've Been a Fool," Says
Scion of Wealth, Back in Mother's Home

Los Angeles—(AP)—The marriage whirl which swept Michael Cudahy, 19, scion of the wealthy meat packing family, and Marie Astaire, 19, slim actress, through three countries in a vain attempt to obtain a marriage license, subsided Thursday with the home of his mother, while his intended bride consoling herself at her hotel in Hollywood.

Young Cudahy was returned to the care of his mother, Mrs. J. P. Cudahy, widow of Jack Cudahy, Wednesday, following a night spent in the Santa Barbara jail, after she had taken drastic steps to prevent his marriage to the actress.

"No, mother did not scold me," Michael explained several hours later. "She just pointed out where I was wrong. I've been a fool."

Cudahy previously said he started on the marriage venture after a New Year's celebration.

"The joke's on me," Miss Astaire told reporters. "He seems to have changed his mind, now that he's back at the end of the apron strings again. So it's freedom for both of us."

FIRE DAMAGES
TWO STORES ON COLLEGE-AVE

Dry Cleaners and Music Store
Suffer Heavy Losses at Noon Today

The Jule E. Wechler building, 215-17 E. College-ave housing two business establishments on the ground floor and two families on the second floor, was badly damaged Thursday noon when fire, originating from a boiler in the Novelty Cleaners and Dyers shop, swept through the rear end of the structure. The loss is estimated at approximately $25,000.

Besides damage to the building, both families lost much of their household furnishings from smoke and water, and practically all of the stock in the two business places was either damaged or ruined.

Part of the loss is covered by insurance.

The building was occupied on the first floor by the Novelty Cleaners and Dyers, 215 E. College-ave, and the Max F. Kozietzke music store, 127 E. College-ave. The Kozietzke family occupied rooms above the store, while the apartment above the cleaning establishment was occupied by the Charles Metz family.

The fire was discovered by Mr. Metz, who was sitting in the kitchen reading. He observed smoke issuing through the walls and floor.

The fire had crept up between the walls before it was discovered, and had broken through in several places when the fire department arrived.

The task of extinguishing the fire was made exceedingly difficult because of the inability of the firemen to get at the flames at once.

The alarm was turned in about 11 o'clock, and the blaze was not put out until after 1 o'clock.

Mr. Metz was at home with two of his children, Earl and Eunice, when the conflagration was discovered. The daughter was ill in bed, and the son was still sleeping, having worked the night before.

Although the front of the building was not touched by the flames, it was damaged from water and smoke. The fire was confined to the rear.

The Novelty Cleaners and Dyers shop is operated by Charles A. Sparling.

OPEN ROAD PROGRAM REPORTED WITHIN 36 "SNOW STATES"

Wisconsin Included in States
Which Strive to Keep Highways Clean

BY BASCO N. TUNNION
Washington, D. C.—Highway officials in Wisconsin and 35 other "snow states" report a program of open road for the snow season of 1926-1927. The Department of Agriculture announced Monday.

In the winter of 1925-26 the road mileage cleared of snow in these states was about the same, compared with 42,165 miles in the winter of 1924-25. Their expenses for snow removal work last winter were in the neighborhood of $3,000,000. Expenditures for keeping roads open for winter traffic is so keen in some states that tax payers insist on snow removal even if the funds required for that purpose curtail road construction work.

In a study of snow removal problems, the department discusses the importance of snow removal. Formerly the movement of farm products to the cities was discontinued during the winter months and necessary commodities were procured for consumption by country people at the fall. Country store keepers, especially those doing business at a distance from railroad stations, had to stock up before the first snow storm, and were saddled with a heavy investment for holding merchandise until required by consumers. This condition lasted until motor vehicles came into general use and the rural public began to call for improved roads.

It soon came to be realized that improved roads did not yield anything like the maximum possible return on the investments made in them unless they were open to traffic during the entire year. It was also felt that costly motor vehicles, without roads to carry them, used up much capital unprofitably. The 36 snow states in 1925 had 375,774 miles of surfaced rural roads, and 16,125,559 registered motor vehicles. From 1921 to 1925, inclusive, they expended about three and one-quarter billion dollars on highway improvement and maintenance. It has also been estimated that their registered motor vehicles in 1925 involved a purchase cost of approximately fourteen and one-half billion dollars. It is obviously uneconomic to have the transportation facilities represented by this investment in road improvement and motor out of use annually for several months by snow. In the heavy snowfall area, where snow removal is not done, the advantage of paved roads and motor vehicle may be interrupted for three or four months each winter. Progressive rural populations with a large investment in good roads and motor vehicles are becoming less and less inclined to tolerate this condition.

So strong is the demand from taxpayers for more extensive snow removal programs, that the department experts today believe it will not be many years before all paved roads and their connecting sections in the United States will be kept open for year-round traffic. Accordingly, the department is studying snow removal expense in various states to ascertain the best and cheapest methods.

COUNCIL VOTES TO PAY FOR LAWRENCE-ST SEWER

By voting to pay for a storm sewer to be placed on Lawrence street, the Appleton city council at its meeting Wednesday night dispensed of a problem which had been caused by protests of property owners on that street.

Residents on the east side of the street have their sewers connected to the Appleton line and those on the west side have a private sewer line on their own land. Because they did not recognize the need of another sewer on this street, the property owners objected to paying for it.

R. M. Connelly, city engineer, advised the council that the pavement should not be placed on this street unless there was a storm sewer underneath to take care of the flood water. The aldermen decided that as long as the residents were already connected with sewers which would care for their own maintenance, it was necessary and they have ordered the board of public works to prepare plans and specifications for this sewer.

each winter. Progressive rural populations with a large investment in good roads and motor vehicles are becoming less and less inclined to tolerate this condition.

So strong is the demand from taxpayers for more extensive snow removal programs, that the department experts today believe it will not be many years before all paved roads and their connecting sections in the United States will be kept open for year-round traffic. Accordingly, the department is studying snow removal expense in various states to ascertain the best and cheapest methods.

CITY SETTLES WITH COUNTY IN POOR SUIT

A release in the county's suit against the city to recover $226.65 for poor aid extended a woman between 1916 and 1924 who, it was proved, was a legal resident of Appleton, has been executed. It was reported Thursday by Stanley A. Stahl, assistant district attorney. A settlement was reached upon the city's payment of $150.

Poor aid was given Albertina Beiro, deceased, between Nov. 20, 1916, and Feb. 1, 1924, and the costs were paid by the county in the belief that the woman was a legal resident of the town of Grand Chute.

The county claimed that she really was a legal resident of Appleton during that period and brought suit against the city to recover that amount.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLASSES IN PROGRAMS

A wand drill will be the first demonstration of physical education classes of Appleton high school between half periods of interscholastic basketball games. Sixty girls from Miss Edith Yeager's classes will take part in the drill to be given between halves of the Oshkosh-Appleton high school meet Friday night at Armory G.

The demonstrations have been planned to show townspeople the type of work done in physical education classes and to prevent the undesirable habit of throwing hot pennies to small boys, the principal and physical education teachers stated. By filling the intermissions with an entertainment, there will be no time for pitching coins, it is believed.

Among the plans for future demonstrations are a boxing match by Coach Joseph Shields' boys, an Amazon triumph dance, a clown dance and others by the girls.

COUNCIL VOTES TO EXTEND TIME FOR PAYMENT OF TAXES

Sewer Taxes Divided Into Installments to Run for Five Years

Neenah—Time for the payment of taxes without 2 per cent penalty has been extended until March 1 and the payment of taxes on the special sanitary sewers for those who are unable to pay the entire amount at this time has been divided into five installments of one year each at 6 per cent interest. This action was taken Wednesday by the city council.

City aid to dependents hereafter will be taken care of by the poor commissioner who is given full power for the care of these people. This ruling was adopted by the council after the presentation of a bill by business firms, in which orders had been issued by persons other than the commissioner. Alderman Marty of the First ward introduced an ordinance forbidding any person but the commissioner ordering supplies and prohibiting any merchant from delivering supplies without presentation of an order signed by the commissioner. The ordinance was adopted. Mrs. F. Bishop, city poor commissioner was called on to give a report of her work. She told of taking care of 19 families consisting of 77 people during the period between May and January. She requested special attention during the Thanksgiving and Christmas season.

The Chicago and Northwestern railway crossing at E. Forest-ave and E. N. Water-st will be provided with modern wig-wag signals which will be in operation the entire day with a flashman at the Forest-ave crossing between 7 o'clock in the morning until after the switching in the evening. After that time the signals will operate automatically. Orders are to have the new system in operation by March 1.

Compulsory sanding of sidewalks was introduced by Alderman Marty who asked that an ordinance be introduced similar to the one in Appleton. The project was left with the sidewalk committee for investigation.

Street expenses hereafter will have to conform with the map now on file in the office of the city clerk. A resolution to this effect was dropped.

A tank and pump for gasoline used by the city was proposed following a proposition by an individual firm to furnish such an equipment. Private ownership did not suit the aldermen who were in favor of a tank owned by the city.

The lighting of N. Commercial-st across N. Water-st to Wisconsin-ave across the bridges now under construction will be the charge of the state so that the entire project can be handled at the same time. The clerk was instructed to notify the state highway commission to this effect and to present the layout of the proposed ornamental lighting system on that street for the approval of the state in turn draw plans to submit to the city for its approval. Alderman Laurson was not in favor of a lighting system paid for out of the general fund, claiming the people in the out-laying district would not get the benefits. Attorney Kelly informed the council that under a recently enacted law, the cost of an ornamental lighting system in the city would have to be paid out of the general taxes.

Petitions for building a new First ward school near the proposed new Senior high school and the petition for enclosing the Neenah School property to remain in Neenah instead of moving to some other city, did not appear as expected as both petitions are awaiting further signatures before presentation to the council.

An application for a non-intoxicating liquor license was presented by H. E. Skafke, Lakeview. The application was favored and the license granted. Report of the poor commission showed that $273.77 was spent for care of city charges during the last month. The finance committee reported on bills amounting to $11,628.44 which were ordered paid. Monthly reports of the police justices and police department were presented and referred to the attorney.

Mrs. Schug is survived by her daughter Dorothy; father, Charles Worden; two sisters, Mrs. F. E. Seymour, Green Bay, Mrs. J. Lybarger, Fond du Lac; and two brothers, Edward Worden, Ladysmith, and O. Worden, White Lake, Wis.

RETURNS FROM EAST

Menasha—Arthur Witt, who has been visiting relatives in New York and New Jersey for the last eight months, returned home Wednesday. He said there is very little snow in Jersey and New York city, but said he saw considerable passing through Pennsylvania. There was quite a little cold weather in that part of the country during December, he said.

MENASHA PERSONALS

Menasha—Mrs. L. T. Richards has returned home from a several days' visit with friends in the northern part of the state.

Mrs. Peter Schmalz has returned from St. Elizabeth hospital where she has been receiving treatments for the last two weeks.

Mrs. Louis Barshaw, Bond-st., submitted to an operation for appendicitis Tuesday at Theda Clark hospital.

Mrs. P. V. Lawson has gone to San Diego, Calif., where she will spend the remainder of the winter.

AUTOMOBILE, GARAGE DAMAGED BY FIRE

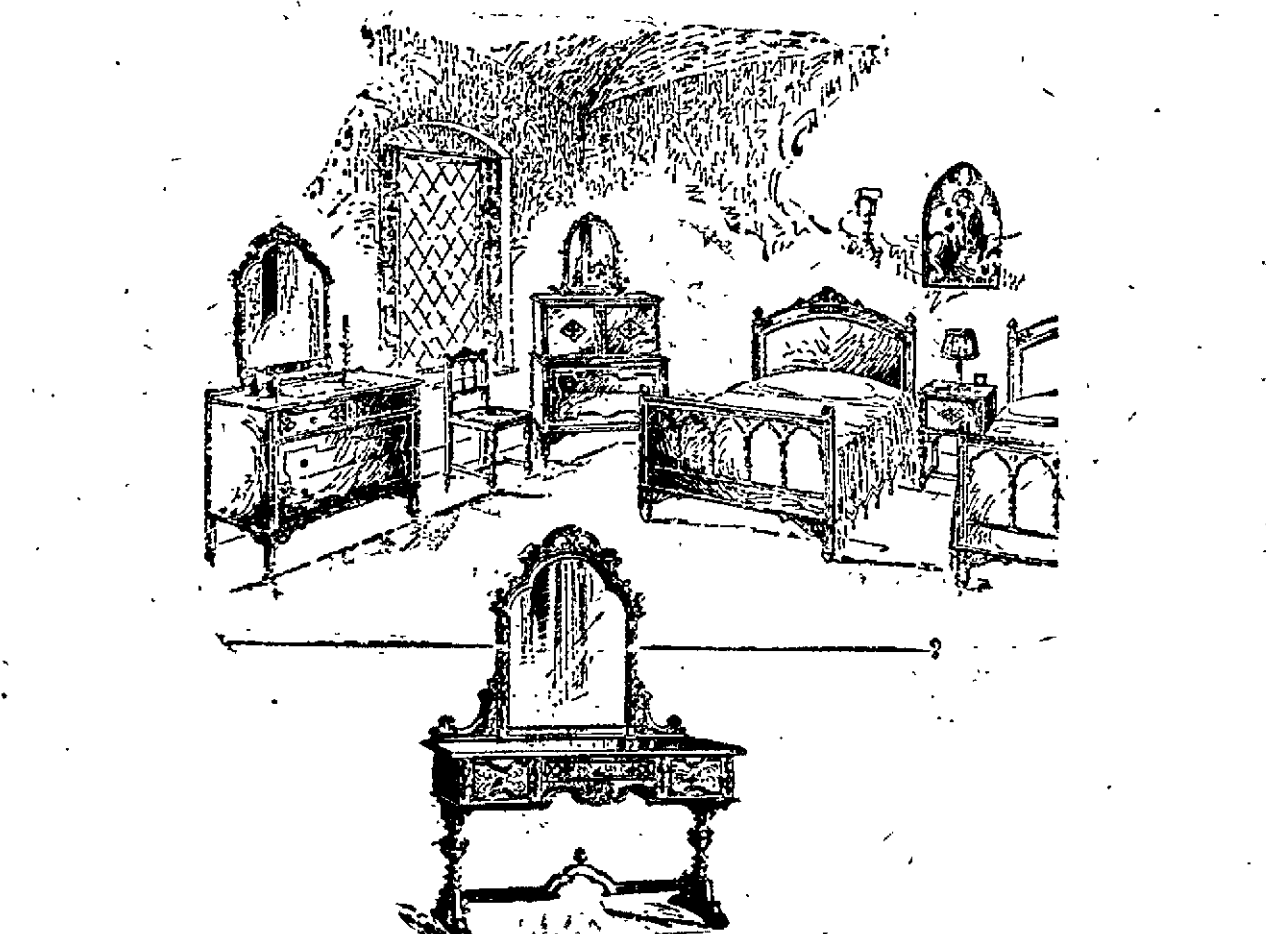

Menasha—An automobile belonging to Peter Coenen, 736 Appleton-st, caught fire in a barn used as a garage at 10 o'clock Tuesday night and was badly damaged. The blaze started in the upholstery and after destroying the top communicated with the side and roof of the building. The fire department was called and put out the blaze with chemicals.

IN CAR ACCIDENT

Neenah—Willard Vanderheiden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vanderheiden of Menasha, who recently was transferred from the Chicago office of Sears-Robuck company to the Atlanta, Ga., office was in an automobile accident last week. The car in which Mr. Vanderheiden was riding was damaged when another car collided with it at a street intersection. Mr. Vanderheiden escaped without injuries.

NEW BARBERSHOP

Menasha—Mike Malouf, prominent in local and state bowling circles, is about to open a barbershop in the Liebhauer building on Racine-st. The new quarters are being fitted up for him.

THE RALEIGH BEDROOM SUITE

This Jacobean chamber suite is a new Berkey & Gay creation and symbolizes the French, Flemish, Dutch, Spanish and Italian tendencies which soften the massive angles of Elizabethan design.

A multitude of choice woods have been most skillfully combined in forming these pieces. Walnut in a straight-grained figuring appears on the top and sides of the cabinet pieces. Crotch walnut in a hand-matched swirl figuring appears on the drawer fronts, and also in the panels of the bed foot board where it is surmounted by turned onlays of maple. The head board of the bed is of hand-matched butt walnut. The middle drawer of the toilet table and the top drawers of the bureau, the top panel of the bed head board, and the diamond shaped panels on the chifferobe doors are of English Oak burl surmounted by a pierced scroll inlay of imported rose wood.

This suite is of particularly sound construction. Thoroughly in keeping with the spirit of this design is the open-grained wax finish, mellowing and beautifying the natural glory of the woods.

Suite consisting of bed, bureau, hanging mirror, chifferobe, bedroom chair and bench—complete at $483.00.

Liane, Noted Actress Of France, Tires Of Husband

BY MILTON BRONNER

Paris—"When you have a Ghika and he bores you—pouff—you get rid of him. Voila!" says Liane de Pougy, the lovely, speaking in her soft, cooing French.

Now a "Ghika" is nothing like a Peke or a Chow. Liane's Ghika happens to be her husband. He also happens to be a nobleman—Prince Georges Ghika, no less.

After 16 years of wedded life, she has asked the French courts for a divorce. Thus once more she is about to fill the Parisian eye, which so often fluttered and winked and ogled when Liane's name was on the lips of every adoring boulevardier in the 90's.

She had burst upon Paris as a vision of wistful beauty—tall and slender, with a towering mass of light hair and great limpid, blue eyes. When a mere child, she first married a young naval officer who died suddenly. She sent their son to an English school and came to Paris to make her fortune on the stage.

DISILLUSIONED

But she was soon disillusioned. She took the measure of the fat, bald-headed men who sat in the front rows and sent her flowers and jewels.

One night, in a fit of anger, she seized a lipstick and on the theater scenery wrote her summary of what life in the French capital means:

"Paris is THE city of the world where women are most valued and least respected."

A news reporter printed the story and Liane found herself famous.

The late King Edward, the Seventh, then Prince of Wales, was one of his frequent visitors to the French capital. To get the Prince of Wales to come and attend a show was to make its fortune. So Liane at once sent off the following note to him:

"Sir: I do not know you, but I am making my debut in a new piece. I shall be honored if you will come to see me in it. I will be more than honored if you will condescend to applaud me."

The sheer, naive impudence of the missive tickled Prince Edward's sense of humor. He came in great state. He occupied a box. He applauded. Liane's picture appeared the next day in every Paris newspaper.

Soon the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Henry of Orleans, famous journalists, authors and composers were among her admirers and friends.

FAMED HOAX

Melba, the dramatic author, played a famous hoax upon her and upon Paris. He had written the book of the opera "Maïon," which was to be produced for the first time at the Opera Comique. He sent her a ticket for a box and also a jeweled coronet, admonishing her to be prompt for the show.

Liane came to her box, wearing a gorgeous ermine cloak. The coronet gazed on her fair hair. The whole audience rose. The orchestra played a spirited tune.

Liane took it as a tribute to her beauty. She gave royal acknowledgment. Only later did she learn the truth. The assembly had taken her for the Queen of Sweden, who had been expected at the performance, but had written.

One night in the year 1910 she arrived at the Moulin Rouge to find that the seat she had booked had been taken. She calmly entered an empty box. A few minutes later, a good-looking man entered and asked for his seat. She ignored him. He insisted.

DIRE THREAT

"Monsieur," she declared in a passion, "I have on a blue dress, blue stockings, blue garters, blue under-clothing. If you annoy me again I will take them off and throw them at you!"

"Let me share my box with you and turn your blue eyes on me," he said gallantly.

In that unconventional fashion was begun the ardent wooing of Liane by Prince Ghika. She married him and for years disappeared from public view. Now—still beautiful—she is to take one of the star roles in a divorce court drama.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

Hurry, Mother! Remove poisons from little stomach, liver, bowels

Give "California Fig Syrup" if cross, bilious or feverish

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look! Mother, see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless, "fruitly laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

COMMISSION WANTS WISCONSIN TYPISTS

Applications for Positions Will Be Received Until Jan. 28

Stenographers and typists for United States civil service positions are sought from Wisconsin because the state is in arrears in its apportionment of appointments, according to an announcement made by the Civil Service commission. Until Jan. 28, the commission will receive applications from residents of this state for positions of junior stenographer and junior typist in the department service at Washington, D. C.

"The federal civil service law requires that, so far as practicable, positions in the departmental service at Washington shall be apportioned among the states and territories on a population basis," the announcement continues. "Some states are in arrears under the apportionment and this state is one of them. The reason for this situation is that residents have not applied for examinations in sufficient numbers to receive the full number of appointments due this state."

The present stenographer and typist examinations will be held only in states not having the full quota in an effort to equalize the apportionment

CONSOLIDATION PLANS FOR SCOUTS GROWING

Plans for the consolidation of the Fox river valley Boy Scout council and the Green Bay council, started some time ago, are still progressing, according to word received by P. O. Keicher, valley executive, from Judge Henry Graess, Green Bay. Judge Graess, who is promoting the consolidation in Green Bay, is prominent in scout work there.

The judge expects to present the project to the civic clubs, financial support since the community chest drive in Green Bay failed to come up to expectations, he said. Under the consolidation plan Green Bay and the valley council would work under one executive staff.

Examination will be held in a number of cities in Wisconsin about ten days after the close of application date. Full information and application blanks may be obtained from the secretary of the local board of civil service examiners at the postoffice, it was announced.

SHORTENS PROCESS OF MAKING OLD BOWSTRINGS

Sacramento, Calif., (AP)—F. J. Lewis, state storekeeper, has discovered a simple way of making bowstrings, and has succeeded in shortening the process by half.

A properly plaited bowstring, Lewis says, is thin in the middle, becoming gradually larger toward the end to take up vibration. He has worked out an arrangement consisting of a series of pegs, each three-quarters of

A NEW DEAL IN WISCONSIN

Wisconsin's new administration has been ushered in. It is a sort of step-brother government, all of the office holders being descendants of La Follette, but by collateral branches. Numerically the Blaine branch is in the majority, but in an altogether minor capacity and wielding little influence in state policies and politics. At the head of the other branch is Mr. Zimmerman. Wisconsin's new governor, who holds most of the political power at Madison now and who will undoubtedly play a conspicuous part in the formulating of future Progressive policies. He can afford to be magnanimous toward his jealous kinsmen of the Blaine line because he is the whole cheese, or all but a tiny slice, in state government. Petty acts of reprisal will probably come from the Blaine quarter. They will try to embarrass him in factional quarrels and intrigues constantly circulating at Madison. Occasionally they will take a shot at him from ambush, but it will in the main be pop-gun stuff that he can afford to ignore. We expect a good administration from Mr. Zimmerman. He has gone into office on a pledge that he will abandon class government and class legislation, which have so long controlled the public affairs of the state. He believes that all classes and all interests can get along together, and that their views and wishes can be harmonized. He has given his word that he is going to stop the persecution of industry and of successful business, which has retarded Wisconsin's development and prosperity. He has said he will represent all the people and not merely the farmer or laborer, or any one group. If he carries out these principles he cannot fail to be a successful governor and he will have the confidence of the whole state.

We think Mr. Zimmerman assumes the responsibilities of the governorship with an open mind, receptive to suggestions from any and all sources, and that he means to be guided by what appears to him to be fair and square and for the welfare of the state. Every manner of pressure will be brought to bear on him by extremists and those seeking political favor with classes, but if he will only resist this pressure and act according to his good judgment and sense of right, he will make few mistakes.

The tax controversy is to be reopened. Proposals to modify the present system will be made. Some of them will seek to give cities and local taxing districts more of the revenue they are clearly entitled to. There will be an effort to have the government indicate a change of attitude toward industry, to the end that the development of the state in this field may be hastened and not retarded. We think it is a question with manufacturers and capital more of attitude than of taxes. They never know what to expect from one session of the legislature to the next. They are treated as exploiters of the people, guided by sinister motives. Industry wants a change of front more than a lowering of taxes. It wants to be treated as an institution having to do with the progress, prosperity and happiness of Wisconsin. It wants to be accorded its rightful place in the economic life of the state, and not discriminated against in the spirit of hostility.

The governor can well afford to insist upon a friendly attitude toward industry. He should not be afraid of even a reduction in the corporation tax, tentatively suggested by the interim committee. He should not be afraid to accept the conclusion of that committee that industry in Wisconsin is discriminated against under our present tax system, and pays a heavier tax than industry in surrounding states. He should be willing to give industry the relief it is entitled to and play square with it. He should not be afraid of the state property tax, should it be required in order to render justice either to industry or to the cities and counties. He should not be afraid to adopt a policy of taxation that is scientific rather than political, that is sound and equitable both for the state and the local taxing units and that carries out the plain purpose of the constitution and the dictates of common sense.

There are other tax questions such as the gradual abolishing of the personal property tax, the substitution of an additional gasoline tax for the automobile tax, the reform of the inheritance tax law, etc., in all of which matters the way of right and good faith is clearly indicated, as opposed to the way of political expediency. If he will also deal equally frankly with conservation, reforestation, the budgeting of state expenditures, etc., we shall guarantee the administration will be a success—indeed, one of the most successful in the history of the state. It is an opportunity any well-intentioned and ambitious man should lay hold on, and we are looking to Mr. Zimmerman to do it.

NO ROOM FOR VARE AND SMITH

One phase of senatorial integrity is involved in the Smith (Illinois) and Vare (Pennsylvania) cases, and quite another in the case of Senator Gould of Maine. The charge against Mr. Gould is that some fourteen or fifteen years ago he paid money to a Canadian official in connection with a railroad contract. The charge has been gossiped about in Maine for many years and it was renewed by the opposition to Gould in the campaign last year. That the people of Maine took little stock in the story, or, if they did, did not consider it of sufficient importance to unfit him for the senate, is shown by the fact that he was elected by a large majority. The senate is the judge of the qualifications of its members, but we do not think the constitution contemplates such arbitrary exercise of this authority as would have to be invoked to pass upon a single incident in a member's life that occurred nearly a generation ago. Furthermore, there is as yet no proof of anything that could be construed as criminal conduct. Our purists have, it would seem, gone a little too far in attacking the record of Mr. Gould and asking for his expulsion. His attorney holds that the senate has no constitutional power to refuse him the seat to which he has been elected. We should not be surprised if this contention were upheld. At any rate, we expect to see Mr. Gould seated.

Senators-elect Smith and Vare are on an altogether different footing. A formal investigation conducted by the senate shows that both hold credentials resulting from purchased elections. Neither one may have been personally guilty of crookedness in the use of the millions of dollars spent to elect them. It is not necessary to prove such extreme corruption of the ballot to affect a man's fitness to hold a position of high public trust. The money contributed to Smith's campaign came largely from a public magnate whom Smith had been in a position to favor, and who undoubtedly did expect favors. Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania says in his message to the Pennsylvania legislature this week that Vare's nomination for the senate was "partly bought and partly stolen." Vare's is the more important case of the two, because the so-called Mellon machine of Pittsburgh is involved. He says this machine, and the Mitten machine in Philadelphia, "spread their black, hawk-like shadows over the community, borne upon the wings of eminent respectability and organized crime." He described one wing of these machines as "men who depend for their living and their power on liquor, crime and vice." We do not think the truthfulness of Governor Pinchot's charge will be questioned. It is a clear-cut case, and the nature of the Republican machines in Pennsylvania is as well known as its geography. The senate cannot admit these two men without compromising both its prestige and its respectability. If it should admit them, it would not only stultify its reputation, but it would put the Republican party in line for one of the greatest popular chastisements it has ever received.

THE INDIGESTION REFERENDUM

A total of 774 ballots were cast in the straw vote on the question of indigestion November 18. As the first returns began to come in I realized that I had inadvertently overlooked at least one exception when I said I firmly believe there is no discomfort, distress or trouble annoying or serious enough to call for a remedy or relief, which can be reasonably ascribed to any difficulty in digesting any particular thing. One of the first voters in the referendum filed with his ballot a minority report saying that when his best friend even tasted of salad containing shrimp the poor fellow's face swells, his eyes water and he becomes severely ill. If this isn't indigestion what in the name of fairness is it? Answer: Allergy, anaphylactic shock—but then, I should have entered this exception in the referendum.

The ballot used in the straw vote was as follows: It is my personal belief, observation, experience (cross out words not needed) that the following food or foods usually, sometimes, always causes, brings on the trouble, distress, discomfort, pain, illness, nausea, vomiting, flatulence, gas, or (mention any particular manifestation) which we call indigestion. (Cross out words not needed).

Signed
Thirty-three ballots said that no food ever causes any trouble. Thirty-three healthy minded people, I should say.

About sixty ballots were invalid because voters used them merely to register their views. For instance one voter voted twice to say that sour cherries and milk at the same meal should never be taken. Another informs me that indigestion is bunk and that moderate indulgence in alcoholic beverages is a sure cure. Another assures me foods never cause it, but hate and anger and other emotions are invariably the cause.

One surprise in the result of the voting was the large number of ballots cast against apples. We doctors ought to hail this with delight, but as a matter of fact I am saddened by the verdict. No less than 70 ballots mention apples as the cause of indigestion, and in most instances they specify raw apples.

Bananas came in for a comparatively moderate condemnation. Sixty-seven voters would have no bananas in Utopia.

Onions were accused by 81 voters. Three specified raw onions, two specified cooked onions. For the rest just onions.

Most ballots listed from three to six different foods. But there were lone votes cast against the following single items: Honey, oatmeal, eggs, cooked onions, green peppers, lemon, apples. I dare say many of these cases are instances of allergy or sensitization.

Pork, cabbage, cheese, pie, cucumbers, string beans, lima beans, and just beans, doughnuts, corn bread, sweet potato, sauerkraut, pickles, chestnuts, tomatoes, asparagus, chocolate, "hot breads," are mentioned by various voters.

All fried foods seem to be in ill repute with people who have something the matter but not like to know just what ails them. "All fried foods" appear some two dozen times. To my mind this doesn't cast the slightest suspicion on the cook. Fried food is just as wholesome, healthful and digestible, to my mind, as food cooked or prepared in any other way, from eggs to mush, and a darn sight better tasting, to my palate.

With the exception of the oversight which I have mentioned, the straw vote proved rather disappointing.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Lone Wolf
My little girl has gotten from the school children a grey louse on her head. Please tell me how to kill it. (Mrs. K. J.)

Answer—Saturate the hair for three hours with equal parts of kerosene and vinegar, the child wearing a bathing cap or towel about her head and carefully avoiding fire or flame. Then give her a thorough shampoo. If any lice are found next day repeat the treatment. Do not use kerosene after alternate day thereafter until no lice can be discovered. The nits are glued to hair shafts close to the scalp. They are best removed by drawing strands of hair through a soft cloth wet each time with hot vinegar.

CARBON MONOXIDE POISONING

Washington, D. C.—Scarcely a day passes at this season of the year without carbon monoxide gas getting in its deadly work of poisoning one or more people. In a few recent cases suicides have chosen the carbon monoxide exit from this vale of tears.

Accidental deaths from this gas occur most often because people have never learned that it is better to be cold than to be dead. They think of the momentary discomfort of opening doors or windows to the icy draughts of winter and they decide to take a chance. The next thing they know, as the Irish bull expresses it, they don't know anything—death has stalked them successfully.

There are also many needless fatalities from carbon monoxide because in spite of all the warnings of health authorities, public safety councils, insurance companies, automobile manufacturers, gas companies, and numerous other agencies people will not understand the deadliness of this gas and how it can get in its work without the victim's receiving the slightest warning. To such people gas of any kind means an odor. They simply can't or won't believe that carbon monoxide is almost absolutely odorless and that there might be a sufficient quantity of it in a room or a garage to cause death without a person's being able to detect its presence until it is time to send for the coroner.

Most of these fatal accidents occur in garages through the running of an automobile engine without opening the garage door or windows. Here again there are victims who suffer because they are incredulous or skeptical. They will say nothing can happen if they run their engines for only a minute or two. They take the chance and topple over.

SURGEON GENERAL'S WARNING
Here's what the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service says as to what even a small engine can do in an average-sized garage:

"In tests of the exhaust of a small 23-horsepower automobile engine it has been found that it discharged approximately 25 cubic feet of gas per minute, samples of which gave an average of 6 per cent carbon monoxide, or 1.5 cubic feet of deadly carbon monoxide gas per minute. Of course larger engines will give off more gas.

"Now a ratio of 15 parts carbon monoxide to 10,000 parts of air is considered a dangerous concentration to be exposed to for a considerable time, and the small 23-horsepower engine in warming up and giving off only one cubic foot of carbon monoxide per minute would contaminate the air of a small closed garage, 10 by 10 by 20 feet, to the danger point in about three minutes."

The Surgeon General also explains the poisonous action of this gas, pointing out that it depends on the fact that it has a much greater affinity for the hemoglobin of the blood than has oxygen. Hemoglobin attracts carbon monoxide about 300 times as strongly as it does oxygen. By combining with carbon the hemoglobin of the red blood corpuscles is prevented from giving up its oxygen to the tissues. Death results from paralysis of the respiratory apparatus.

The attack of carbon monoxide poisoning comes on insidiously and consciousness is gradually lost. Even though the victim may become aware of the danger he is often unable to escape from it because of the great loss of motor power. "The automobile worker in a small garage is most frequently the victim," concludes this warning. "It therefore behooves every person who runs his engine in a small garage to see to it that the room is properly ventilated by having the windows and doors opened if he expects to run the engine for even a few minutes."

A person may be literally immersed in the gas and never suspect it until he begins to grow dizzy or becomes paralyzed," says a warning issued by one of the large insurance companies. "The next stage is unconsciousness; the next, death."

"When death does not come the effects may readily be depression, lowered vitality, and lesser resistance to disease. The feeling of tightness across the forehead, headache, or the tired feeling after an automobile ride may not be due to eyestrain, but to a leaky engine exhaust releasing carbon monoxide. A more or less constant exposure which may manifest itself in various symptoms of ill health."

CLOSED CARS MAY BE DANGER-OUTS
According to this authority, with the increasing popularity of closed cars, there is increasing danger from carbon monoxide poisoning to people who form the habit of riding in the coach, sedan, limousine or coupe with all windows tightly closed. A leaky exhaust pipe from the engine may admit the gas into the car, and there is no more warning of its presence than in the closed garage or room. Even in an open car, with unlimited fresh air, there can be enough carbon monoxide in the air close to the engine to produce serious effects upon those who breathe it.

Cabins of motor boats are likewise fertile fields for carbon monoxide tragedies. The engine is usually in a well-sheltered place, hence the ventilation is likely to be poor, and boatmen should never work over engines so situated without stopping to get out into the open air at frequent intervals.

Nor is the engine driven by gasoline, whether in an automobile or a motorboat, the only carbon monoxide threatening menace to life and health. The gas range in the kitchen, the gas water-heater in bathroom or basement, and gas logs and heaters in living rooms or bedrooms may prove to be equally dangerous. Generally speaking, no gas-burning apparatus should be operated in a house unless it is connected with a chimney or pipe.

The gas range in the kitchen may have been operated, without a sign of trouble, for years without a pipe or chimney connection to carry off dangerous fumes that may be generated, and then some fine morning it suddenly begins throwing out the deadly carbon monoxide and another household tragedy is recorded.

Of that kind, the only safe course is to open a window when it is being used. Taking a bath or dressing in a bathroom heated with a gas heater is always dangerous unless there is good ventilation, while to sleep in a room so heated without opening a window is to give death a special invitation to call during the night.

In a case of carbon monoxide poisoning the first-aid is to get the victim into the open air. A physician should be summoned at once, of course, and an effort made to secure from a gas company, fire station, or some other agency one of the machines that are used for the resuscitation of persons overcome by gas.

Better far than any first aid or the most heroic, skilled treatment, however, is that ounce of prevention—the exercise of simple, sensible precautions—that will make that kind of poisoning practically impossible.

Q. Did lightning do much damage to the forests of prehistoric times? A. H. R.

A. The virgin forests in prehistoric times were not entirely destroyed by fires started from lightning because they were cool, dark, moist, and very dense. This made them less inflammable—than the present day thinned-out forests.

Q. What is a Prince Rupert's Drop? O. R.

A. It is a kind of glass drop with a long tail, made by dropping molten glass into water, and remarkable for the property (due to internal strain) of bursting into fragments when the surface is scratched or the tail broken. It is so called from Prince Rupert, nephew of Charles I, who first brought the drops to England.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York — The "all night beauty parlor" is about to become Manhattan's latest vogue.

Already at least two or more establishments keep open until well after midnight. Their customers are mostly ladies of the theater who rush to have their hair marceled after a hectic stage evening, and who have night-club and "party" engagements for the early morning hours.

But, about the first of the year, one place announces that it will be prepared to continue its beautifying until sun-up.

It seems that in a town with a considerable population bent on turning night time into day time there are many dozens of women who have to appear "refreshed" after a hard evening of night-clubbing and hip flashing.

Women buyers, models, professional waiters in many lines, visitors from out of town — they all have to appear publicly at the usual business hours and insofar as possible, erase the traces of a sleepless night.

Thus they can taxi from their last cabaret directly to a beauty parlor, get themselves "perked up," catch a few winks of sleep and keep an engagement by 9 o'clock.

All factors in the beauty business engage in a continuous race to catch the fat "beauty money" afloat in Manhattan.

Hair bobbing has led to no end of interesting tontorial establishments.

All the better class bobsbers find their time at a premium and exact exorbitant fees for plying their shears. There are some who will accept no engagement that has not been made at least a week in advance and others who boldly will tell you that they cut the hair of only "distinguished people" and do not choose to deal with ordinary folk.

One of the latest wrinkles is "the barber consultation."

Milady is invited to sit in the presence of experts who meet solemnly, like a consultation of doctors, to decide what particular haircut would best fit the individual in question. They take notes and make sketches; they have the victim turn this way and that and, after the "consultation" she is turned over to a barber to get the "perfect bob."

Naturally all such hokus-pokus runs into considerable money and the devotees of the bob, who are in great majority, are beginning to realize that they launched a costly industry.

Bobsbers with fat reputations make fortunes and keep establishments in and about the "avenue" the rentals of which run into the tens of thousands.

Mason, and Brooke. Each gentleman wore a small golden horseshoe. The motto adopted was "Sic Juvat transcendere montes." Only those were eligible in the future who could prove that they had drunk the health of George the First, then King of England, on top of Mt. George.

SOME FOREIGNERS SEE FLAW IN NEW U. S. QUOTA LAW

Scandinavians and Germans
Would Strike Out Paragraph
in Provisions

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—Whether a Norwegian is a better person than a Swede, or a Swede better than a Norwegian or a Dane better than either are questions concerning which each of these three nationalities has a separate opinion. There have even been some arguments.

But all three agree that a Scandinavian is as good as a Russian, an Italian or an Englishman. And no one ever has said that any of the three nations didn't produce good American citizens.

Sons and grandsons of the Scandinavian countries, especially Norway and Sweden, have banded together to strike out a paragraph of the immigration law, which is alleged to discriminate seriously against Scandinavians and Germans.

Paragraph "a" of section 11 of the immigration law, passed in 1924, says the admissible quota of immigrants of any nationality shall be 2 per cent of the foreign-born individual of such nationality residing in the United States as shown by the census of 1920.

But paragraph "b" says: "The annual quota of any nationality for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1927, and for each fiscal year thereafter, shall be a number which bears the same ratio to 150,000 as the number of immigrants in continental United States in 1920 having that national origin bears to the number of inhabitants in continental United States in 1920, but the minimum quota of any nationality shall be 100."

According to the Scandinavians and the Germans, this provision sounds much better than it works out. Determination of the ratio under paragraph "b," Shippstead contends, will be merely guesswork.

He presents the following table computed by the Carnegie Foundation, to show what the effect will be on the immigration quotas from the northern countries of continental Europe:

	Now	After July 1
Germans	50,129	28,118
Dutch	1,031	2,059
Norwegians	6,403	2,433
Swedes	9,561	3,707
Swiss	736	602
Total	68,515	31,529

The decrease of some 37,000 in the quotas of these countries will be made up—as 150,000 immigrants are to be admitted yearly—by increases in the quotas of Great Britain, Russia and southern European nations.

Great Britain is the big gainer. With Ulster she will have a quota of about 33,000 after July 1, compared with a quota of 63,463 now allotted to Great Britain and all Ireland. The Irish Free

Furniture, Rent, Heat Doesn't Bother Governor

Madison — (P)—House furnishings, rent, heat, and light do not worry Wisconsin's new governor.

When Governor and Mrs. Fred Zimmerman leave the home which they have occupied since marriage in Milwaukee, to take up their residence at the executive mansion in Madison, they will find their new home completely furnished.

The state takes good care of the home of its governors, going so far as to furnish maids and a janitor. Furniture, drapes, rugs, everything is arranged for the comfort of the gubernatorial family. According to an official in the office of the superintendent of public property, all the governor will have to do is "pay the grocery bill."

The home at 130 E. Gilman-st. has only been in use since the inauguration of Governor Blaine six years ago. Previous to that time it was known as the executive mansion but as the governors preferred to commute to their homes in other cities, but little attention was paid to the furnishing of it. Governor Phillip occupied it at times, but made his permanent home in Milwaukee. With the coming of the Blaines from Boscebel in 1920 the complete refurnishing of the governor's home took place. "Everything is in the home that is in a furnished apartment," declared the state official.

Among the things which the state gives its executive is a car and a chauffeur. The car is known as the "official car." In the rear of the governor's home is a boat house, with boats kept in repair by the state.

No changes are contemplated in the house because of the advent of the new governor, and only in case of request by the new mistress will any changes be made. It is not known whether the Zimmermans will move any of their household goods to Madison, but it will not be necessary according to the department of public property officials. If they do, it will probably be stored in the garage. "Like the furnishings which the Blaines brought from Boscebel were" the department officials commented.

If a barrage were thrown across the Bristol Channel, near the mouth of the River Severn, in England, it would produce nearly twice as much electric power as is obtained from Niagara Falls.

State, under the present law, is allotted 23,567, but after June, the computations show, this quota will be reduced to about 8,000. Thus the Irish Free State would appear to be the big loser.

Shippstead's bill is now before the Committee on Immigration and he hopes for action on it during this session.

APPLETON STUDENT SEEKS $15,000 OF TRANSIT COMPANY

Melvin Schneider Will File Suit This Week for Damages in Crash

Suit for approximately $15,000 damages will be brought against the Royal Rapid Transit company this week by Melvin Schneider, 903 E. North-st., as a consequence of a motor bus accident on July 3, 1926, near Baraboo. Mr. Schneider, an instructor in violin at the Jebe School of Music, will leave Thursday for Madison to consult his attorneys as to the amount of damages incurred and details of suit. He will return Saturday after filing his suit against the transit company and the New Amsterdam Casualty Co.

Five University of Wisconsin summer school students, also in the accident, filed suits in Dane county court last week. Entire damages against the company by the five students and Mr. Schneider is expected to amount to $95,000. Others suing are Helene Worthman, Malvern, Ia., $25,000; Mary Shergar, New Castle, $10,000; Bernice Bartlett, New Castle, $10,000; and Rose Lincoln, both of Marshall, Ia., $15,000.

The motor bus crashed over a 20-foot embankment on Highway 33 near the Butterfield bridge and plunged into the Baraboo river. Students of the summer school had chartered the bus for a holiday trip to the Wisconsin Dells region at Kibbourn. Mr. Schneider was severely cut about the face and head, leaving several permanent scars, and for a time his condition was serious.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Use this Better Motor Fuel that does what Gasoline Can't!

THOSE motorists who have sampled Delcol Benzol's easy starting on cold days, its smooth, surging flow of power, its anti-knock performance on hills and in heavy pulling, its increased mileage-economy and other worth-while advantages—those motorists keep on using Delcol Benzol.

And the longer they use Delcol Benzol, the more insistent they become in their preference for it. This is only natural because it is human nature never to be satisfied with something "almost as good" after you have experienced the real thing! The best grades of gasoline may be almost as good as Delcol Benzol, but no gasoline can duplicate Delcol Benzol performance.

To-day gasoline refiners are doing their best to produce gasoline that will do what Delcol Benzol does. BUT—only Delcol Benzol can deliver Delcol Benzol results because this is a distinct fuel having characteristics that no gasoline has.

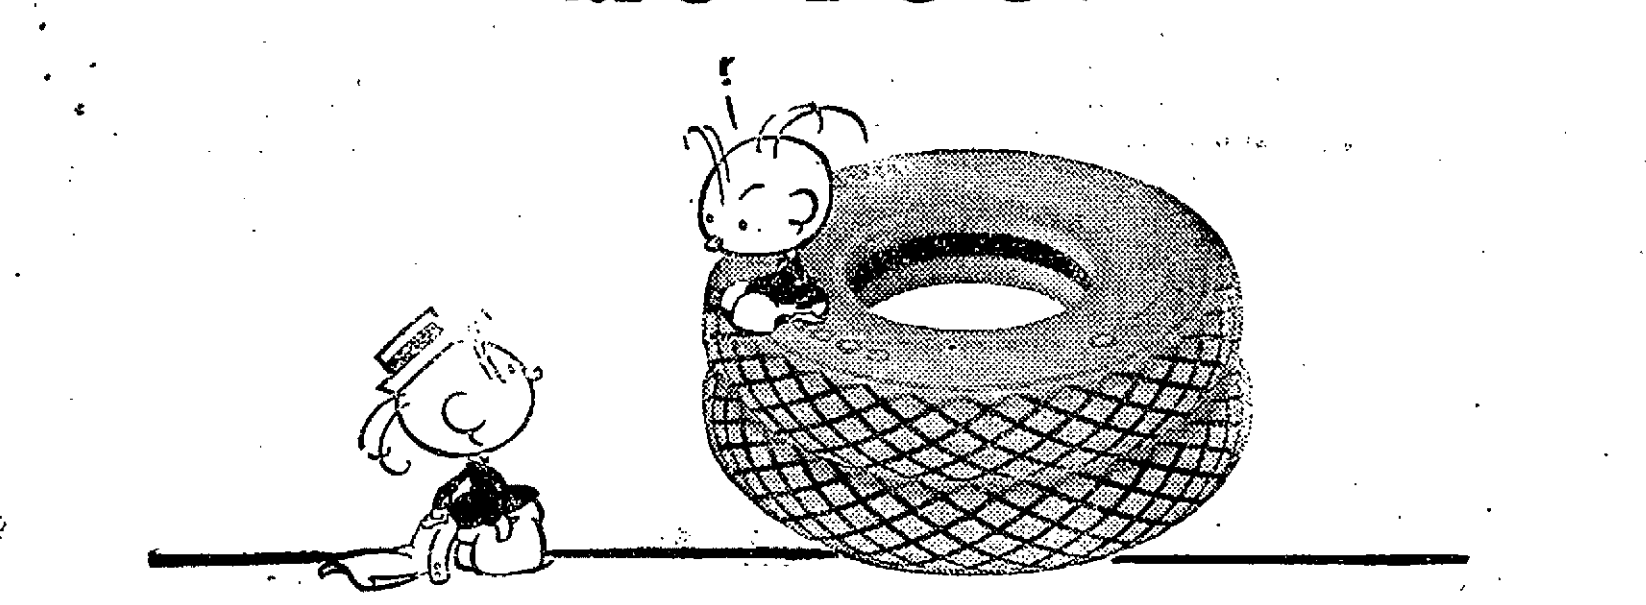

Delcol Benzol is a scientific blend of high-test gasoline and purest Benzol. It combines the best qualities of both of these fuels, thus making the one best fuel! You will never regret changing over to Delcol Benzol.

Whose Butter'n' Egg Man are YOU?

IN New York they call 'em "Butter-and-Egg Men" now—those prosperous papas who fall for the line of conversation handed out by the clever vamps.

But there are vamps in other places than New York—and, in a manner of speaking, there still are a good many he-vamps left in the tire business. Whenever you run up against a soft-talking tire dealer who in honeyed tones makes you a "special price," or otherwise seems to be slipping you "something for nothing," look out!—one of those birds is working on you.

And likewise, when you fall for it—when you complacently figure you've outsmarted this fellow at his own game—believe me, you're that baby's "Butter 'n' Egg Man," and no mistake!

"Right Out in the Open"

Now our customers and us play none of these hide-and-go-seek or value-value-who's-got-the-value games. All our deals are "out-in-the-open" transactions.

We sell the best tires made—Goodyear Tires—and we sell them at fair prices, based on actual cost, the same prices to everyone, no dickering. No one can buy equal-quality tires cheaper than we do—our volume and our habit of taking all discounts insures that; and nobody can sell them cheaper than we do and stay in business.

We sell these tires just the same as any other responsible merchant sells quality merchandise, and we stand back of them. Your wife or daughter or young son can get just as good a deal in buying tires from us as the shrewdest trader in this section.

Real Mileage Service

It seems the majority of sensible people like to trade this way, because we've been doing business here for years, and every year our business has grown.

Our men are not only salesmen, but "tire engineers"—schooled to fit the right tire, in the right way, and competent to advise you to get the greatest possible mileage out of that tire.

They know we mean what we say when we tell them WE DO NOT WANT TO SELL A TIRE TO ANYONE UNLESS THE TIRE SOLD WILL GIVE THE CUSTOMER VALUE RECEIVED.

STRONGER THAN DUTY OR LOVE

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

Judge Ben Lindsey's articles on "Moral Revolt," in which he speaks with a knowledge born of 27 years of experience in a divorce court, he suggests greater freedom in marriage as a possible cure for the marked change in social custom.

Judge Lindsey views the matter in the light of constructive appraisal. He regards the present rigid marriage contract as pernicious and a menace to happiness. But has not his world been among people who are leading abnormal lives? One's point of view is likely to be influenced by the world he knows. Only Judge Lindsey would say that it is not abnormal for married people to fall in love with someone outside of the family.

But he admits that it is custom that makes "right." And as the great majority of the married people in the United States find happiness in adhering to their marriage vows, we must reply that his argument answers itself. Majority rules in political law—it also rules in ethical law. Whether he is correct or not in his reasoning the centuries must show. Whether or not the next few hundred years will find the marriage laws of the nation embracing polygamy and permitting the harem none can tell. Such a thing may come to pass. All things are possible.

But I wish everyone could know a certain woman I know and hear what she had to say of her own complication.

She is married. She has had every excuse on earth to divorce her unprincipled husband of a husband. I also know the tertium quid, a king of a man in every respect, except that he, like David, fell in love with another man's wife.

The tertium quid went away and married a girl in Italy—so he is out of the picture. The woman is still a dutiful wife to her husband. "Why didn't I divorce Don?" she said. "I can't explain it exactly, but to me marriage isn't just a peep-show to enjoy until you're tired of it. No matter whom I married, I'd always be married to Don. Everything we do or think or say has its effect upon our lives. It stamps itself definitely. Nothing is really past. I'm married to Don. I'll always be married to Don. If I divorced him and married again, in my mind I'd still be Don's wife."

I have heard others say it. It is not habit exactly—or duty, or allegiance. It is something finer than any of those things.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

THEN all the Tynymites had a skinning story and had a ride out through the air, they all agreed that Scouty was the best. He seemed to know the proper style of doing it, so after while he staged an exhibition just to please all of the rest.

And then they heard wee Carpy say, "Why there's a house, not far away. Let's all go up and try to find who lives there, if we can." They hid the skills behind a tree and Coppy shouted, "Follow me!" And they all had to hurry to keep up, cause Coppy ran.

The whole bunch traveled on, pell-mell. They slid and slipped and almost fell, but finally reached the little house near buried in the snow. "My, what a dandy little place," said Clowny. "But there's not a trace of anybody. Who lives here, is what I'd like to know."

And then they rapped upon the door and shortly hear somebody roar "Hello there! Who is knocking. Don't be bashful! Come right in." But here the Tynymites even tried the little door swung open wide, and then they saw a funny man whose face spread in a grin.

"Well, how-dee-do, my little friends," said he. "I am the man who lends most everybody ice skates so that they have some fun. How would you like to skate awhile? You'll only have to walk a mile to find a pond—or, you will get there faster, if you run."

"Oh, see that pond we'll surely find," said Scouty. "My, but you are kind, and nothing's ever gained by anyone who hesitates. So, if you'll do just as you say, we'll soon be on our merry way." And then and there, the funny man, brought forth a lot of skates.

(The Tynymites go skating in the next story.)

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

Faith's hands clung tremblingly to Bob's shoulders as he answered the telephone.

"Hathaway speaking. Good morning, chief. She's surrendered at Min-turn? Will they be here in time for the inquest? That's good. See that the papers understand that she voluntarily gave herself up, won't you, Morehouse? Thanks."

"Oh, Bob," Faith flung her arms about him as he turned. "Poor little frightened Cherry! How dreadful she must be feeling now!"

Morehouse says the sheriff of Min-turn county has just called him up. Said Cherry and Wiley drove up to his office, Cherry clutching a morning paper in her hands. Said she declared her innocence, her complete ignorance until that minute of Uncle Ralph's death, and begged to be allowed to come straight to town to give herself up for questioning. "I look good for her, honey."

Before Faith could answer, the front door bell rang. It was the advance guard of the afternoon papers to get a new angle on the case. One of the reporters was a nervous, eager-eyed, thin young girl, who insisted upon seeing Cherry's room, and not letting down details of the furnishings of the whole house.

"Our paper's running columns of them this afternoon," she told Faith. "Of course we're playing up her romance with Mr. Wiley. Most of the letters were from him, and from a Mr. Etilson!" Faith bit her lip to keep from screaming out the horror that that name conjured up. That foolish indiscretion of Cherry's would now be brought against her, used to blacken her character in the eyes of the public.

"I can't understand," she gasped, "why Chief Morehouse permitted the papers to use those letters. They are not evidence. They have no bearing on the death of Mr. Cluny."

"The papers are lucky that they aren't real evidence; otherwise the chief would have had to guard them for the grand jury," Miss Nichols, the reporter, retorted. Then, at sight of Faith's tortured eyes, she put her arm around Cherry's sister and spoke soothingly. "Believe me, I'm sorry for you, Miss Lane. Don't blame the papers, though. The real truth can't hurt Cherry and the public must have the news."

"I suppose so," Faith said dully, hopelessly, as the two girls went back into the living room to join Bob and the men reporters.

"I've been telling the boys, dear what I told Morehouse last night—that we are engaged to be married," Bob took her hand.

Faith and Bob consented to be photographed and the dull boom of the flashlight had hardly died away when Miss Lane, her kimono wrapped about her huge body, came waddling hurriedly into the room.

"What do all these people want, Faith? Where's Cherry? Dr. Atkins said she'd be home today. Where's Cherry?" her voice rose to a scream, as the reporters stared at her blackening details of the furnishings of the whole house.

"Good Lord! The old dame doesn't know a thing about it," one reporter breathed audibly to another.

Faith turned to them imploringly. "Please, won't you all go now? My mother isn't well—she has heart attacks. Please, Mr. Hathaway and I will see you all again at the—later, at Mr. Cluny's," she amended, growing ever paler at the narrowness of her escape from using the dread word "inquest."

NOW WOMEN STEAL MEN'S FOOTWEAR--COSSACKS NOW NECESSARY BEFORE WARDROBE IS COMPLETE; CHINCHILLA COMES OUT OF HIDING

BY BETSY SCHUYLER

NEW YORK—Having stolen and adapted for their particular needs, men's knockers and his pajamas, women are now pouncing with glee upon his boots.

Whether this is Soviet propaganda in disguise or something less ominous, I know not, but apparently women are going Cossack as fast and as far as boots will carry them.

I have seen the most dashing black boots with red heels and cuffs, as well as all red and all navy blue ones. But the most traffic-endangering pair were of snakeskin with cuffs of patent leather.

With short skirts, the boot is logical, at least, and is a challenge to the conventional and ordinary.

And how tortoise shell is creeping upon us in the slow, steady fashion of its original manufacturer! The smartest hats now have tortoise shell pins or buckles and I have seen attractive brooches of tortoise, to say nothing of shoe buckles and cigar cases.

CHINCHILLA OUT AGAIN

And where have all the chinchillas been hiding these many years, for suddenly there seems to be all of this super expensive fur that anyone wants—or is able to buy. On my last visit to the opera I couldn't help noticing the number of chinchilla and chinchilla-trimmed wraps there were parading up and down the foyer. After all, if nine out of every ten women own an ermine wrap, the exclusives have to go one better.

And before I become specific and get down to cases on clothes, let me just remark on the number of embroidered hats I have seen within the past week. If you want a change from felt, you can have it.

Quite the prettiest clothes I have seen lately turned out for the Kaufman-Biddle wedding. Naturally the bride, Joan Kaufman, had no alternative but white satin, old lace and pearls, but the two little flower girls were adorable in costume's copied from Gainsborough's "Pinkie."

Those adorable children wore frocks of apricot chiffon over pink satin slips with sashes and hats of apricot velvet, and carried tiny baskets of apricot-colored roses. The bridesmaids wore period costumes alternating in hydrangea blue and orchid velvet with underslips of tulle and banding with silver lace, and each maid carried a small marabou miff with a cluster of orchids. The matron of honor, Mrs. Crawford Hill, wore apple green velvet with gold and silver lace. It was a triumphant entry into St. Thomas's.

MUFF IS GROWING

I've warned you already about the muff. It is upon us, and growing. I might add, in stature. I saw Betty Nixon carrying a very good-sized one of squirrel that matched her squirrel coat. It seems a courtesy to your fur coat to match it in your muff.

New York is all excited about that gorgeous creature from Paris, Yvonne Printemps, an actress herself and the wife of Sacha Guitry, the dramatist. When she came down the gangplank of the Leviathan she was wearing a white knish coat trimmed with ermine cat, and queerly enough she wore high laced shoes of white buckram, with facings of black patent leather. With them she wore white hose. She is lovely enough to get away with anything, but her feet did remind me of the late Sadie Thompson in "Rain."

She brought with her a gorgeous wardrobe created for her by Lanvin, gowns that are visions of femininity. Most of them are white, and all her day clothes are decidedly on the sport order.

I saw a perfectly adorable outfit at the opening of "Oh Pussie." It was of white voile with cross tuckling, with a trim little ribbon garter in "Rain."

FRAGILE BLONDE

The pale, fragile blonde will enhance her delicacy by wearing gowns of black lace or black net, provided her color is not sallow.

which was a nice luscious bunch of cherries. The hat which accompanied it was a wide brimmed affair of white leghorn banded with red satin, and more nice Early Richmonds falling off the brim. Cherries are so ridiculously youthful—and so effective.

ORANGE AND GOLD

Beatrice Lillie, the star, wore lovely gown of orange and gold cloth with wing draperies of orange colored georgette particularly appealed to me.

Lunching at Pierre's, I saw Edith Jaffray in a blouse of white georgette brocaded in gold, with a black velvet skirt and a black velvet turban, very exotic and oriental.

I saw Mrs. Frank Vanderlip in a black chiffon outfit with brilliantly colored flowers scattered over the surface, worn with a subdued black velvet coat modestly collared in chinchilla. I just caught a glimpse of the piquant Billie Burke in a mink coat, her glorious red hair concealed under a tiny hat of blue felt. She is always pleasant to look at in these days when so few women take the trouble to look feminine.

I never remember of seeing Eleanor Alexander look more fetching than she did the other day on the avenue in a black fur coat and a brilliant little hat with a big butterfly in front. She was with Gwendolyn Talbot in a coat with godets of fur.

SHOES OF MANY COLORS SHOWN AT EXPOSITION

Mauve, rose, pale blue, gold and silver were the predominating colors in women's shoes seen at the exposition of the "Paris Leather Week." Black shoes were greatly in the minority.

The exposition represented firms from Germany, Scandinavia, Great Britain, France and the United States.

For street and afternoon wear two distinct trends were noticed—one toward very simple models in snakeskin, the other being strapless models in tree and four pastel combinations with cubistic design.

The shoes are solid built and unmarred by open work.

MOLESKIN "PULL-ON" HATS

Moleskin hats are the big autumn mode in Mayfair. Almost every other woman is seen wearing what is casually referred to as a "pull-on" hat, with a tiny brim and full tanmy crown, all made from the finest fur. Many of them wear moleskin coats to match the hats.

FARM SITUATION
REQUIRES STUDY,
SULLIVAN WARNS

Entire Business Structure Depends on Farmer, Bank Directors Told

Kaukauna—Mayor W. C. Sullivan spoke on agricultural conditions at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Farmers and Merchants bank Tuesday evening in south side Forester hall. Three hundred and fifty shares out of five hundred were represented at the meeting.

"The situation of the agricultural problem must be studied jointly and sympathetically by leading representatives of industry, commerce, transportation and finance with leading agriculturists to work out some sound constructive program to right the existing inequalities," Mayor Sullivan said. "The problem is no longer a regional or local problem. The nation as a whole is a natural problem. Industry, finance and commerce, in order to protect themselves, must assist the farmer to secure if necessary relief measures. The government must subsidize agriculture for a reasonable period of time until confidence, stability and organization for the elimination of waste in the business methods and a well-defined economical plan of marketing is perfected. Farmers should perfect an organization of their own as have labor and industry. The great economic disparity that exists between agriculture and industry is primarily and solely the result of lack of organization among farmers. The farmers are the last unit of American society to organize and they are especially guilty since they are the only group in America permitted to organize without limitations.

"There is not a thing the government or legislation can do for the farmers that they cannot do for themselves through organization. Yet the farmers stand idly by calling for government aid. Were it not for the fact that the farmers' wretched position imperils the nation as a whole, they would deserve neither aid, pity, or comfort from the government. The American farmer stands today at the verge of the charge of not being able to successfully handle his own business and is pathetically calling upon the government to act as an emergency guardian. The total world production of agricultural products is not keeping step with the growth of population the world over, but is actually decreasing. Figures on agricultural production show an actual net decrease from 1913 to 1924, excepting tobacco, potatoes and wool. The shrinking in land values in some sections of the country has all but wrecked their banking system."

"We are facing with a world food shortage. It is now England's fate to regret the mistake of too intensive an industrial development at a cost of letting agriculture lag behind. The stability of agriculture and the placing of the agriculturalist on a profitable equitable and just financial basis is the most far reaching and most serious problem in our national life today. There is a close interdependence of agriculture and our entire industrial and commercial business structure. The agriculturalist represents a purchasing power of nearly 60 per cent of our total. When such power is seriously arrested it manifests itself in just such a condition as confronted our eastern manufacturers last July with a billion dollar surplus of surplus manufactured goods on hand and no channel in which they could be placed and be ultimately absorbed by the nation."

"The basic industry of America, agriculture, is now and has been for some time selling its finished products below the legitimate cost of production. Modern agriculture is a science and to be successful it should suggest the application of all modern business technique."

The mayor quoted many interesting figures showing the depopulation of the farms and the available food supply. Other speakers at the meeting were City Attorney Joseph Lefevre, Charles Grode of the town of Immanuel, the Rev. Van Oest of Hollandtown and John Schmidt, president of the bank. All spoke on the present agricultural situation.

The board of directors declared a 11 per cent dividend on all stock. It was voted to increase the pay for attendance at directors meeting.

All officers and directors were re-elected. They are: President, John Schmidt; vice president, H. E. Thompson; cashier, Hugo Wolfenbach; directors, L. F. Nelson, Joseph Lehrer, Joseph Hartzheim, J. L. Coonen, H. Passberger, C. Himmens and Charles Appleton. H. Olin was reappointed assistant cashier.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS
READY FOR OCONTO

Squad, Decked Out in New Suits, Prepares to Meet Strong Team

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna High school basketball team scrimmaged a local team Wednesday evening in the last strenuous workout before the Oconto Falls game here Friday evening. The youngsters looked good and had very little difficulty with their more experienced opponents. The starting lineup will no doubt find Macrorie and Verbeten at the forward positions, McFadden at center and M. Miller, Bissell, Esler, Farwell and Kronforst as reserve guard. Kronforst suffered an injury to his knee during the scrimmage and Coach Smith is nursing the knee hoping that he can use Kronforst as a regular before the close of the season. The team made its first appearance in white uniforms Wednesday evening. The change from the orange uniforms to the white was made because of the large number of teams having orange for their school colors. Macrorie, Verbeten, McFadden, M. Miller, Bissell, Esler, Farwell and Kronforst received the new uniforms.

Oconto Falls comes to Kaukauna Friday night with an impressive record for the present season. The squad has won four games and has defeated the strong Catholic High school of Marinette. Earlier in the season Marinette Catholic High easily defeated Marinette High school. This means that Kaukauna will have to be at its best to win.

The big game will start at 8:30. There will be a preliminary game here between the high school seconds and some strong local team.

STAGE And SCREEN

"MAN OF THE FOREST" IS THRILLING ENTERTAINMENT

Directed by the man who made
"Forslorn River" and "Born to the West," Paramount's current screen production, Zane Grey's "Man of the Forest," which came to Fischer's Appleton Theatre Friday and Saturday, holds reliable promise of thrilling and satisfying entertainment.
Jack Holt, as Mill Dale, hero of the story, and Georgia Hale, leading woman, risked their lives in making the film to provide the sort of action required. Miss Hale's first venture in the strenuous western type of picture was made under a lucky star. People who have followed her work since she burst upon the film permanently in "The Gold Rush," and later in "The Rainmaker," are awaiting the new production with the greatest interest.
One of the play's big thrills is the kidnaping of a girl, in the course of which Holt on a speedy horse, overhauls a racing buckboard and drives
the struggling woman into his saddle.
A punch scene of the same spinequivering order is provided when a mountain lion, pet of the "man of the forest," fights a gang of outlaws and rescues his master.

JONES' NEW PICTURE IS STORY BY RAINE

"A Man Four-Square," the latest
William Fox production starring Buck
Jones comes to the New Bijou Friday and Saturday. This story, which deals with western life, gives the popular Fox star a picture full of suspense and action.
The picture was directed by William
R. Nell from the story by William Mc-Leod Raine, one of the foremost writers of western fiction.
"A Man Four-Square" deals with a westerner who goes to Chicago for a whirl of life. But after experiencing synthetic gaiety and artificial friends, he realizes that his heart is really in the West where his true friends are.
He returns to the West just in time to help a friend who is in trouble and also breaks up a gang of cattle rustlers who are operating in the country.
He makes a spectacular rescue of the girl with whom he later falls in love.
This picture gives Jones an opportunity to show the West as it really is.
The supporting cast includes Florence Gilbert, Harry Woods, William
Lawrence, Jay Hunt, Sidney Bracey,
Marion Harlan and Frank Beal.

MAN AND WOMAN IN COURT FOR OWNING ILLCIT LIQUOR

Appleton Woman Pays $100
but Kaukauna Man Is Sent to Jail

Two residences, one in Appleton and the other in Kaukauna, were raided by state prohibition officers Wednesday afternoon, and intoxicating liquor was found in both places.
Those arrested were Mrs. Alice M.
Pekel, 1504 W. Lawrence-st., Appleton, and J. E. Spanner, Kaukauna.
Both were charged with the possession of intoxicating liquor without a permit, and were arraigned in municipal court Thursday morning before Judge Theodore Berg and pleaded guilty.
Each was fined $100 and costs. The Appleton woman paid her fine, but the Kaukauna resident, in default of his fine, was lodged in the county jail for 30 days.
Mrs. Pekel's home was visited by the officer about 3:30 Wednesday afternoon. Two jugs of alleged liquor were found there by the raiders and were confiscated for evidence.
The Kaukauna residence was visited later in the afternoon. The raid uncovered 15 gallons of liquor, 100 gallons of mash and a washbowl still.
All the material was confiscated.

MERCHANTS STUDY DOLLAR DAY PLAN

Appoint Committee to Ascertain
Sentiment of Appleton
Dealers

A discussion of whether Appleton merchants will have a dollar day sale this winter occupied most of the morning for the retail trades committee of the chamber of commerce at a meeting Thursday at the chamber of commerce. It was decided that the sale is a success only if every merchant in the city takes part. A committee was appointed to report on possibilities of the sale this year. Harvey Schintz is chairman of the committee and other members are H. L. Post, W. W.
Frank, W. C. Fish and F. H. Zahrt.
Edward F. Mumm, director of the 120th Field Artillery band, told the committee of a three-day show which will be presented by the band in February to raise funds, and asked its cooperation. The committee decided to support the project and a committee of which H. L. Post is chairman, was appointed to boost the ticket sale.
Mr. Schoenhauer of New London,
representing the Appleton-New London bus line, told what was being done to keep the roads clear of snow between the cities and asked the cooperation of the merchants. He said that keeping the roads open not only added the transit company but rendered service to the local merchants.

RISBERG STICKS TO HIS STORY AS PALS CALL HIM LIAR

Not Even "Black Sox" Back Up Swede's Tale Of Thrown Ball Games

Diamond Stars Deny Contributing to Pool to Buy Off Detroit Team

Chicago—(AP)—Swede Risberg, Minnesota cow-man and baseball outcast, sat in Commissioner Landis' crowded, stuffy office Wednesday and heard 26 of his former playmates gave him the lie.

For hours he sat within arm's reach of men who used to sit beside him on the bench as members with him of the 1919-1920 White Sox.

Yet he heard no word of greeting, no "hello Swede" nor received any nod of recognition.

Once he was called a "pig." More than once he was denounced as a liar. But he stuck to his story.

For one hour he sat on the witness stand, his gaze matching that of baseball's overlord and recited his story of a 4-game baseball series which he said was bought and paid for to insure an American League pennant for Chicago.

For four hours he stood leaning against a statue of Abraham Lincoln, waist deep in the muddy back water from the dam which his players quickly constructed. Two accused players spelled their dam with an "L" so vigorous was their denial of the crookedness Risberg charged.

Through it all, the denials, the shunning by former diamond pals, Risberg was the lone wolf against the pack; impassive stoical, determined.

Not even Buck Weaver banished from baseball with Risberg, Arnold Gandel and the rest following the exposure of the "thrown" world series of 1919, gave Risberg's story substantiation.

Thirteen of those who told their story to the commission Wednesday acknowledged either contributing or receiving part of the $10,000 which was raised among the White Sox for the Tigers. A fourteenth had knowledge of the pool, but had no part in it. This fourteenth player was Weaver.

While the thirteen players or former players, including the present and two former managers of the White Sox, told to Landis that a pool had been raised, each said the money was a reward for the three-game beating the Tigers handed Boston, runners-up in the 1917 pennant race.

SHORT SHOTS

Chicago—(AP)—Now that those who select all-American teams have heard from it, it is found that Herbert Joesting, the "Sixteen Inch Shell" of the Minnesota backfield, and Bernie Shively, one of the main stays of the Illinois line, are the only Big Ten players to get a unanimous call for players on the team that never plays a game. Joesting at fullback and Shively at one of the guards were chosen by each and every prominent critic.

Benny Friedman of Michigan and Hoss of Ohio State made the first team on only one or two. Baker and Johnson, of Northwestern, and Oosterbaan of Michigan were liked by many football wisemen, and were honored with places on the mythical first team. Boeringer of Notre Dame, was also unanimous choice for center.

The boys who snap the ball into play share popularity with the backfield stars when it comes down to voting a new captain for the football team. Bob Reitsch, of Illinois and Ken Rouse of Chicago, playing center for their teams were voted into leadership of the 1927 captains by their team mates this fall. The picks usually are represented on the expectancy list, and the players at large are honored frequently. Few guards, fullbacks of the line, seldom get the call to lead the team, football history shows.

In 1925 three great centers were captains. Bob Brown of Michigan led his team to a championship; Tim Lowry of Northwestern received the trophy as the most valuable player, and Green of Iowa, the largest man playing the position in the Big Ten, inspired his fellows to victories over Illinois and Ohio State.

There is much discussion at Northwestern university over reports that the University of Texas would like to have "Gloomy" Glen, Thistlethwaite, head football coach there, who put the Purple back on the map with his smashing teams of the past few years. The report that there was any possibility of Thistlethwaite leaving the Purple institution came as a surprise.

Ralph "Moon" Baker, Northwestern All-American football star, is among the missing on the basketball floor. Baker was counted on to put the Purple back on the map in the conference race, but "Moon" is suddenly burning midnight oil. After receiving several flunk notices, Baker spends his evening under the reading lamp instead of on the gym floor shooting baskets.

JOESTING PREFERS MOVIES TO SOCIAL EVENTS OF SCHOOL

Minneapolis—(AP)—Herb Joesting, All-American fullback sensation at the University of Minnesota, necessarily had to have lots of company on the gridiron—they all followed him—but during off hours of everyday life, give him seclusion.

That is the first nature of the Minnesota captain-elect and now that football and post-season festivities have subsided Herb has a little more to say about what he may do with his spare time.

Perhaps, that is why he was seen choosing a dime motion picture show for the early part of an especially active evening, featuring a big league hockey game and outstanding social events both on and off the campus.

Herb is no social lion but he does attend a university function occasionally and now campus politicians are talking of running him for the presidency of the next junior ball.

JUDGES TO DECIDE WINNER OF FIGHTS

New System Replaces Referee's Decision in Illinois Mat, Ring Circles

Chicago—(AP)—The Illinois state athletic commission, charged with responsibility in the conduct of boxing and wrestling, has ruled the cards regulating the sport, and in the new deal the decision in fights will be given by two judges, seated on opposite sides of the ring. The new ruling came about as a result of dissatisfaction with the decisions of referees, who heretofore had the last word when it came to deciding the winner or loser of boxing matches in Illinois.

The referee will have a vote in the rendering of decisions only when the two judges cannot agree. In that event the referee comes back into his own and really decides the contest.

In announcing the new method of returning the verdict on the boxers, the commission pointed out that the referee's decision system had been only an experiment. There had been considerable rumblings about the "work" of the referees, and the matter came to a climax when Mickey Walker was declared the winner over Tiger Flowers in their middleweight championship fight. Many contended that Flowers had retained his title, and the subsequent protests resulted in the adoption of the judges system which is in vogue in New York and Pennsylvania.

The referee usually is in a tough spot. The third man in the ring who decides which of two fighters has won or lost, must have a lot of nerve and he needs it, because no matter what decision he renders, there usually is a protest, sometimes a feeble one, but at other times the protest assumes loud proportions. And it has been that way since the game started back in the days when the battlers fought it out on the turf with bare knuckles.

Only time there is no comeback on the referee is when a man wins by himself, or scores a knockout that leaves his opponent sprawled on the resin covered canvas.

With some exceptions, the judgment of the referees in Chicago has been criticized.

In a preliminary fight at Cubs park last fall the referee raised the glove of a boxer who had been beaten clearly. Nobody cared much, and the crowd did not put on a mob scene. They merely laughed, but the laughter was highly flavored with raspberry.

A moment later an announcer crawled into the ring and a loud voice addressed the spectators not to audibly protest any decisions, as the referee had made an honest mistake. If a mistake had been made.

Kimberly-Clark Co. cagers of the Y. M. C. A., Industrial league added further honors to the company's court game Tuesday evening at the association gymnasium when they took the strong Fox River Paper Co. five to a 16-10 beating. The teams had been tied for the top in the loop with neither having lost a game until the big clash. K-C Co. squads took the lead in two loops by the win for the Athletics beat Fond du Lac at Kimberly to take a firmer grip on the State loop top.

Kimberly lead 5-4 at the half and at the third quarter the score stood 6-5, after 30 minutes of tight defensive play. Both squads cut loose in the final quarter and Kimberly scored four ringers and three free tries for the half while holding the Bietzmen to three ringers by continuing a good defense. Van Ryzin and Boettcher were K-C scoring aces with Van caging three ringers and Boettcher two. Thelen added three free tries and Van one and DuChane added a basket.

Ray Tomvor scored two ringers for the losers and Radtke and Berro had one each.

In the second game of the evening, Co. D. took its first loop battle by forfeit. The Galpin Hardware, a leading team of the loop, had only two men on the floor and was forced to take the forfeit. The loss cost the Hardware a tie for second with the Fox crew and pulled the Guardsmen from a cellar tie. The Galpins added three men from the Bankers and Fox River teams and played a practice game with the Soldiers which was won by the latter, 23-20 after they had trailed at the half, 11-10. Frazer got six baskets for Galpins and Green did the same for the Guardsmen.

Saturday night the Coated Paper Co. and Citizens Bank clash in the opener and the Kaukauna "Y" and Riverside Paper crews meet in the final tilt of the evening.

BLUES OPEN HOME CARD WITH MARQUETTE SQUAD

Coach George Christoph's Lawrence college cager squad will make its first home appearance of the season on Tuesday evening, Jan. 18 when Marquette's Golden Avalanche invades Armory G. The Blues had the date with Marquette tentatively, but it was not confirmed until this week. Lawrence plays Marquette at Milwaukee on Feb. 23 in a return game.

Proof that the game will be far from a practice is contained in the Avalanche's record to date this year. It includes a close loss to the crack Badgers who are beginning to show the stuff they are made of. The Badgers won out in the final minute when Barkel dropped three baskets to give the visitors a three-point win after they had been trailing by that count.

"Shorty" Sherger Is First 4-Letter Man At Lawrence

SHORTY SHERGER is first 210 spts. A story the Post-Crescent sport page a few days ago that Walter "Snookie" Heideman was the first four-letter man at Lawrence college and that when he graduated he probably would have earned the most letters of any Blue athletes brought out the fact that Elmer "Shorty" Sherger beat the boy to the honors. Sherger was a four-letter man for three straight years, a record in itself and took two more his first year for a record of 14 letters, two more than Heideman can earn in his four years, including three L's still to be won.

Sherger is an enthusiastic Lawrencean, attending many homecoming and "big" games. He was one of the most enthusiastic rooters when the Blues walloped Beloit at Beloit this fall. He captained the 1907 state title team and played on two other title eleven turned out by Mark Catlin.

Lawrence college has produced two four-letter athletes since its entrance into competitive athletics, files of "The Lawrentian", official college publication, indicate.

The first Blue athlete to win the coveted "L" in four separate sports was Elmer "Shorty" Sherger, 1908, of Evansville, according to an issue of "The Lawrentian" in the fall of 1907. Not until 1925 was another Lawrence man to merit this honor. He was Walter "Snookie" Heideman of Appleton. Although Lawrence has uncovered many athletes of unusual note during this span of years and before, not another one was able to excel sufficiently in four sports to be awarded a letter in each, athletic records at the college show.

The feats performed by Sherger still furnish topics for lively narrations whenever old alumni get together. Besides captaining the football team in 1907, he was an outstanding performer in baseball, basketball and track. Baseball was a major sport here at that time. Sherger is said to have won 14 letters in major sports during his collegiate career here, a record never equaled before or since.

Heideman won his letters in football, basketball, track and tennis at the close of the 1925 school year, he had won nine letters, two in football, three in basketball, one in track and three in tennis.

The 1907 "Lawrentian" has this to say about Sherger:

"According to athletic records at Lawrence university, 'Shorty' Elmer Sherger of Evansville is the only athlete in the history of the university who has ever received the four 'L's' that is for meritorious competition in football, baseball, basketball and track events."

"There have been quite a number of Lawrence men who have been awarded three 'L's' during their college career and more who have received two, but it is believed 'Shorty' is the first Lawrence athlete who has taken all four 'L's' while in college."

"The 'L's' are awarded to the best men of all Lawrence teams at the end of the season each year and are in recognition of honorable and successful competition with opposing teams."

"Sherger has played center on both the football and basketball teams, has played various positions on the baseball team, and has excelled in the high jump and low and high hurdles in track work. In all of these events he has splendid records, being captain of the 1907 football squad. Mr. Sherger graduated with the class of 1908."

Mr. Sherger is still living at Evansville today.

RIPON BEATS OSHKOSH TEACHERS, 36 TO 26

Ripon—Ripon college opened its home basketball game here Wednesday night by repelling Oshkosh Normal cagers, 36 to 26. Ripon took an early lead and at half time was ahead 20 to 11. Oshkosh rallied at the start of the second half and drew up close to Ripon, but the latter's regulars returned to the game and stopped the threat.

Former Orange Coach Goes to Sheboygan; State Loop Is Strengthened

Kimberly—Jack McAuliffe, former Appleton high school coach and Green Bay Tacker football player, has been added to the Sheboygan American Legion Basketball lineup and will appear in league games in the future. This addition of McAuliffe to the lineup gives that squad one of the most impressive lineups in the loop. Other teams that are strengthening up are Port Washington and Manitowoc. Port Washington has the biggest share of the old Milwaukee Bright Spot team since they have added "Skinny" O'Connor and "Red" Dunn to their lineup. They should win a big majority of their future games with this addition. Manitowoc has added the Logan twins of professional ball fame to their list, and are all set to go through the loop leaders with their revamped outfit. Competition in the State loop this year is the closest ever seen in a league of this size and should provide a thrilling finish at the end.

Kimberly, Plymouth and Sheboygan have each lost one game, while Sheboygan and Plymouth have won four and Kimberly won five games so far in the league. Sheboygan and Plymouth are favorites over the K. C. team though Kimberly is given an outside chance to knock off their rivals. Plymouth defeated Kohler in a close one at Plymouth on Tuesday night while Sheboygan trimmed Manitowoc on Wednesday. With the Logan twins added to their lineup the Manitowoc Boosters are bound to give their opponents plenty of trouble in the future. On Wednesday, Jan. 19 Kohler meets the fast stepping Sheboygan Legion and on Friday the K. C. Athletics meet the Legion squad at Sheboygan. Kimberly does not play any more league games until Jan. 21 when the Sheboygan quint is taken on, Tuesday, Jan. 11. Kimberly plays the speedy Nekosha-Edwards quint at the clubhouse. After the Nekosha game the Kimberly-Clark Athletic Association is giving a dance for the Nekosha players.

HAWKEYE QUINTET IMPROVES SCORING

Swift Passes Bring Shots at Basket; Travel to Chicago and Purdue

Iowa City, Ia.—Scoring technique which may cause trouble to rival Western Conference teams is being brought out by the University of Iowa basketball quintet. The Hawkeyes are setting themselves for the Chicago game Saturday and the Purdue battle Monday, both on foreign courts.

To defeat Marquette University in the last preliminary game before the Big Ten race, the Hawkeyes were responsible for ten field goals and fifteen free throws. They showed a vastly improved ability to make shots count and on the free throw line gave remarkable exhibitions. McConnell, with ten points and Wilcox, scorer of eight, were the leaders in scoring.

After slightly more than a month of work, the first team—Twoogood and Van Deusen, forwards; Wilcox, center; Captain Hogan and McConnell, guards, is snapping into neat floor-play. Captain Hogan is becoming more like his old self following a shoulder injury sustained in football.

Coach Barry continues this week to work his team on swift, short passes, sudden reverses and deceptive fakes—tactics which give the Iowans many shots at the baskets.

Appearance of the Old Gold team on the floor at Bartlett gymnasium, home of the Chicago team, will mark the twenty-fifth battle between the Maroons and Hawkeyes. Iowa has won fourteen; Chicago ten, since 1908. Since 1920, eight games have been won by the Hawkeyes and three lost.

INSURANCE MEN WHIP KIMBERLY PIN QUINT

Nelson's Insurance bowlers won two games of a match rolled with the Kimberly Alloys Wednesday evening at Kimberly, beating the home crew by 87 pins before a large crowd of Kimberly pin enthusiasts. The Insurance men rolled a 2717 match to top the bacon. The home crew took the first game by 14 maps and then lost the next by 53 and the third by 48 more.

G. Roehrick and J. Verbeten of the losers had high games of 210 each and Roehrick had high series, a 555. For the winners, A. Jimos, coming back strong after a long out of the game for over a month with a broken thumb, came back strong to take high game of 204 and high series of 550. A 203 game by N. J.auer of the winners was the only other double century mark of the fray.

Michigan Only School To Hold Badger Quint

MAULSON—Since Dr. Walter Meanwell assumed his duties as basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin, the Badgers' western conference opponents have all been struggling to gain the edge on the little short-pass wizard. Wisconsin's five, during Meanwell's regime, hold an advantage in victories over each of the other nine Big Ten schools, with the exception of Michigan. The Wolverines and Badgers have mixed on the court on ten occasions and the count is even, five and five.

In spite of the consistent strength of the University of Indiana in the cage sport, the Hoosiers have always found the Cardinal very troublesome competition. Since Coach Meanwell assumed the duties at Madison of cage mentor, Indiana has won but one contest while Wisconsin has rambled along to 14 victories. Everett Dean has the distinction of whipping a Meanwell coached five, for his strong aggregation of a year ago turned the trick at Bloomington in a very decisive manner.

The Badgers have proven even more of a stumbling block to the basketballers of Northwestern for the last eight years that the two have met on the hard-boards. The Evanston teams have succumbed to Wisconsin 15 times, while the Badgers have dropped but a single encounter in the sixteen meetings. Maury Kent's Purple are set to avenge this long-sided record when they battle Wisconsin in a pair of games this winter.

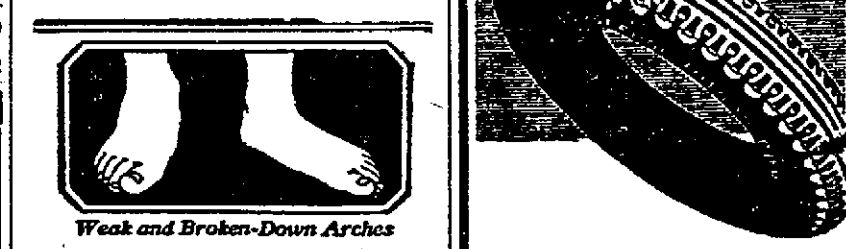

Iowa and Ohio are next in line of the luckless Northwestern quintettes who have found the going rather rough when bumping against the cage of Wisconsin. The Hawkeyes have annexed a pair of victories in ten attempts, while Ohio State trails at the short end of a 9 to 3 count. Next to Michigan, Illinois has been the most troublesome of all comers to the shortpass antics of the Badgers.

The Illinois are in possession of eight wins over Wisconsin, while the Meanwellites have twelve games to their credit. The following is a complete record of the games won and lost from Western Conference opponents by Wisconsin teams coached by Dr. Walter Meanwell:

Opponents	Won	Lost
Northwestern	15	1
Indiana	4	1
Iowa	12	2
Ohio	9	3
Minnesota	16	6
Chicago	15	7
Illinois	12	8
Purdue	9	5

RIPON IN 2 MIDWEST GAMES THIS WEEKEND

Ripon—Coach Kolt's Ripon college cage quint left Thursday on a swing through Illinois where they will meet Monmouth and Knox in the opening contest of the midwest schedule. The Red cagers meet Monmouth Friday night while the team travels to Galesburg on Saturday to engage the first Knox five. The Crimson team is expected to meet some stiff competition from the Illinois cagers on their home court although Ripon defeated both quintets last year in conference games. Kolt announced the appointment of Harold Kole, Fond du Lac, as cage manager for the season.

BLUE CAGE LEADER SHIFED TO CENT

Capt. Grove, Old Menas Center, Moved from Gu to Help Squad

Appleton—With his opening in the Wisconsin-Illinois conference schedule for Saturday night at Lake Forest college at Lake Forest Ill., Coach George Christoph made important change in his Lawrence college caging lineup in practice, moved Capt. Vera Grove from guard to center in an attempt to eliminate the biggest weakness of his original combination, which lost to Chicago university and defeated Chicago M. C. A. college in pre-season last week.

Sund and L-nke have been alternating at the post since Hill who was the strongest ball player in early practices, was barred, neither performed strongly. Both forwards by experience and inclination.

Grove is fast. He handles the ball ably. He's strong on defense. He has an accurate eye for the basket. He showed up strong in his first job in the initial workout, and start at the post Saturday night. Hillman, a sophomore, whom Christoph has used in the position part of the time, will be shifted into guard place vacated by Grove. Fortz, another reserve guard, so get a trial.

Broken Threads

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
To the home of PROF and MOLLIE ELWELL in Camdensville, one night in October of 1898, Mrs. MARTHA DALTON, wife, bearing a woman who had ridden on the train on which she had been traveling.

Jim is an artist. He has a twin sister, Mollie. Late that night the twins were born to the woman, who dies without revealing her identity. The Elwells adopt the girl.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins, now growing to beautiful womanhood, have been named MARGARET and ELIZABETH and nicknamed RUSTY and BETTY.

America enters the World War and Jim Elwell enlists. Two nights before he leaves he discovers that one of the twins loves him, and that he loves her. He tells his mother this but does not tell her which twin it is, as he wants her to love both of the twins equally while he is away.

The day before he leaves, Jim decides to take both the girls to Chicago for a last good time. They decide to wear the diamond ring their mother had worn when they were born.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY
CHAPTER IX
Prof. Elwell had estimated the stone to be worth a thousand dollars at the time the twins were born but he knew that diamonds had more than doubled in value in the intervening 18 years.

The ring was the girls' joint legacy, and because of its heavy band and its unusually large and peculiar setting he had always held the feeling that it might some day lead to the unraveling of the mystery attaching to their birth. It was only on special occasions that either of them ever wore it.

He placed the ring beside Rusty's plate. "There you are, my dear," he said and gave her hand a little pat, "the reward of good work."

Rusty picked up the beautiful gem and looked at it with wrapt gaze. "That part of the ring surrounding the stone was so large as to give it an almost topheavy appearance. The diamond was perfectly cut and gave off a blue-white gleam."

She pressed it to her lips for an instant and then passed it across the table to Jim.

"You wear it first, big fellow," she said and the smile that accompanied her words was like a free-will offering to the gods of sacrifice.

Jim patting her hand, "Bravo!" and slipped the ring on his finger, where it remained until the trio had reached Chicago, when Rusty took it over for two hours of joyful possession. And it is doubtful if there ever was a diamond ring that gave to its wearers quite so much unalloyed pleasure as that ring gave to those girls that day.

Telegrams announcing their coming had been sent to Dick Canfield's address from Camdensville that morning with instructions to meet the trio at the station in Chicago.

But they found no Richard awaiting them on their arrival. This was a grievous disappointment to which the three gave voice in three distinct and separate sighs.

Well, was Jim's final decision when it became evident that the telegram had missed its mark somewhere and he had failed to get any answer to a telephone call, "the quickest way to find out whether Dick is in Chicago or not is to get a taxi and shoot out to his aunt's place."

At the smart apartment building on upper Michigan avenue it was learned that Dick Canfield had gone to New York to join his aviation unit and that his aunt had returned to her old home somewhere in Vermont. So the three from Camdensville had recourse to their own devices that day for "seeing life in a great city."

"That's that," said Jim when he and his pals had re-entered their taxi, "and now the next thing on the program will be something else. Aye, something else," he grinned and looked mysteriously at his two companions.

Both grinned in response, although one of the twins, it might have been noticed, blushed, very becomingly while the other giggled a little tremulously.

Something like an hour afterward, Jim engaged a room for the girls at a hotel in the Loop that they might remove the dust of travel and freshen up a bit for luncheon. After purchasing tickets from a speculator in the lobby for a matinee that afternoon, he loafed around until the girls came down.

And they did not fail to attract attention, even in that busy place where thousands came and went during the day.

One "Muddy" Waters, well known to Chicago sporting gentlemen as a fairly trustworthy "hand bookie," huskily whispered of his admiration to his partner, Jep Cohen, as Jim and the girls crossed the hotel palm garden in the wake of the head waiter and took their places at a small table by the wall.

"Lamp th' two fillies on that guy's string," was Muddy's contribution. "A parlay shot on a couple favorites! At that," he finished, "he's got a awful handicap; ought to split his bet."

"With you, for instance," supplemented his partner the while his own gaze, leveled at the twins, bespoke unqualified approval.

"You got me the first time," acknowledged Mr. Waters with a grin. "I'd play either or both straight across the board. There's class there, you can take it from me."

"I advise you," said Mr. Cohen, "to snap out of it, 'Them's thoroughbreds. Don't waste your time." At that moment the orchestra, which had been playing a medley with a jazz motif, struck into the air of "Oh Praise Me."

His glance turned and he looked into the eyes of The Girl. He held for a brief instant but in that instant he read again the story that had been revealed to him the night before in the light of the big moon.

His heart beat accelerated and the roomful of people started turning around while the music seemed to be coming from afar off. Then the pressure against his knees relaxed. "The Girl's eyes were veiled by the long-lashed lids and things reverted to normal."

But even as his vision encompassed the scene spread out before him, a scene redolent of life and gaiety, there flashed across his mind a line he had read a few days before in a book of poems belonging to The Girl:

"Love, like the opening of heaven to the saints, shows for a moment even to the dullest man the possibilities of the human race."

Love. . . He wondered if it hit all men as it seemed to have hit him. A waiter appeared from nowhere and took their order. The orchestra swung into a lively fox trot and the open space in the middle of the great room was soon filled with dancers. It was sultry hot in the street but in the big palm garden the temperature was softly cool and delicious.

"Isn't it just grand?" breathed Rusty, and Betty echoed, "Grand!" and then added, "It's too perfectly speegashious, isn't it, Jimmy darling?"

Speegashious was right, whatever that was, Jim agreed and wondered vaguely, as young men are accustomed to wondering sometimes under like conditions, if the check for this splurge would be a "speegashious" check. The two race track followers at the nearby table, and for whom Jim's companions seemed to have become the pivot around which all their conversation wagged, could have told Elwell that the check was going to be everything that was speegashious and otherwise.

"I'd be damn good an' willin' to pay the bills of either one of them two queens for some time to come," Muddy declared with solemn utterance and his mild blue eyes took on a pensive look.

"But that's the hell of it," he went on in a pensive tone, "a wise guy like me ain't got no chance nowadays for anything but these walking Indian stunts. It's always some big Hoosier that cops off the classy little hummin' birds."

Muddy Waters and his partner were not the only ones in the big palm garden whose attention had been drawn toward the two girls from Indiana.

At a nearby table, to Jim's left and in front of him, sat a woman, strikingly dressed. She had been sitting there when they came in and her eyes, only mildly curious at first, had lighted in surprise when they had encountered the ring which Rusty wore on her finger and which she now and then examined with elaborate ostentation.

Jim had noticed the woman, probably because, sitting directly in his line of vision, he could scarcely help seeing her and because every time he looked her way she seemed to be looking at one or the other of the girls.

He took note rather subconsciously that she was a remarkably handsome woman although presumably close to middle age. Her hair, beneath the wide-brimmed hat, was black and her remarkable eyes were black too, or very dark brown.

Jim observed presently, that she had stopped a waiter and seemed to be telling him something confidential. The waiter nodded, laid down his pad and pencil on the cloth in front of her and moved away.

The woman wrote something on the pad. Jim Elwell between snatches of conversation with the twins noted idly that she frowned and then crumpled up the sheet on which she had written. A moment or two passed and then she began writing again. This time the pencil moved unintermittently, and when she was through she read over what she had written.

A remark from Rusty drew Jim's attention away for a moment and he did not see the woman beckon to the waiter again. When he arrived at her table the woman tore off the sheet of paper, handed it to the waiter and then nodded casually toward the table where Jim and the girls were sitting.

The waiter, with an inclination of his head, turned and walked away. Presently he stepped across to Jim Elwell's table and laid the paper down in front of that young man. Then, without a word, he moved away.

Jim, half mechanically, began to read it. Then, its significance breaking on him, he started violently and turned instinctively toward the table where he had seen the woman writing.

The twins, noting his surprised look, queried in the same breath, "What is it, Jim?"

"Durned if I know," he replied. "The woman, he had noted had left her table and was moving across the room. The next instant she disappeared through an exit. The paper was fluttering from Jim's hand to the tablecloth."

There is room in several night school classes of the Appleton Vocational school for several more students. A preliminary survey of the classes shows, according to Herb Heilig, director. A more thorough checkup of the classes is being made by the teachers this week. Those classes in which several more students may register are sewing, commercial English, arithmetic, shop mathematics, penmanship, drafting and public speaking.

WHITE FAVORS GAS TAX OF 5 CENTS TO IMPROVE HIGHWAYS

State Senator Is Preparing Bill to Introduce into Legislature

A $1 license fee for automobiles for a three year period and a five cent gasoline tax is the proper method of raising money for road improvement throughout the state, is the belief of State Senator Merritt F. White of Winneconne, who is preparing a bill which he will introduce into the next session of the legislature. If the bill is adopted it will repeal the present weight tax for automobiles and will substitute a license fee of $1 for a three year period and raise the gasoline tax from two cents to five cents. "Such a tax would place the burden where it belongs, namely on those who use the roads most," Senator White declared. "Tourists coming into the state would help to build the roads they use, just the same as Wisconsin people."

"It would not cost the state any more to collect a five cent tax than it does to collect the present two cent tax, while on the other hand, the plan of a $1 license fee to cover a three year period would materially reduce the clerical work done in the office of the secretary of state."

Senator White declares that a 5-cent gas tax will raise equally as much money as the present weight tax law. On the basis of $5,000,000 raised by the 2-cent gas tax this year, he declares, a 5-cent tax would raise

SELECT TWO DEBATE SQUADS NEXT WEEK

Two debate teams will be selected early next week at the close of the tryouts being held at Appleton high school, Adam Aitchison, debate coach, has announced. The first will meet other teams in the triangle debates sponsored by the Fox River Valley Forensic conference and will use the question: "Resolved, that the Philippines should be given their independence immediately."

"Resolved that Appleton needs a new senior high school building," will be the question discussed by the second team. This will be debated before high school assembly meetings, and if possible before meetings of town people, Mr. Aitchison said.

$12,500,000. In addition the $1 license fee would raise $700,000 every three years.

Senator White also advocates raising all of the money expended on roads by means of a gas tax or some such direct method instead of paying for road improvements out of general levies on all taxable property.

The Winneconne legislator believes that the additional gas tax would not mean a permanent increase in the cost of gasoline. When the two cent tax was first levied, he pointed out, gasoline dealers added it to the regular cost. Since then practically all have absorbed the tax and gasoline costs no more now than it did before the tax went into effect.

The same situation would hold true, proportionately, if a five cent tax were levied, he believes. The dealers will not permit gasoline to go so high that motorists cannot afford to operate their machines and will keep the price within reason, he believes.

Vulcanizing That Stays Always Pays

To Make Pine Cough Syrup at Home

Has no equal for prompt results. Takes but a moment to make. Saves about $2.

Pine is used in nearly all prescriptions and remedies for coughs. The reason is, pine has a remarkable effect in soothing and healing the membranes of the throat.

Pine cough syrups are combinations of pine and syrup. The "syrup" part is usually plain sugar syrup.

To make the best pine cough remedy that money can buy, put 2½ ounces of pine in a pint bottle, and fill up with home-made sugar syrup. Or you can use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—more than you can buy ready-made for three times the money. It is pure, and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. The cough may be dry, hoarse and tight, or may be persistently loose from the formation of phlegm. The cause is the same—inflamed membranes—and this Pine and Syrup combination will stop it—usually in 24 hours or less. Splendid, too, for bronchial asthma, brouchitis, and hoarseness.

Pine is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its prompt effect upon coughs.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "½ ounces of Pine" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pine Cough Syrup Co., Pt. Wayne, Ind.

CROP REPORTING SERVICE AIDS FARMER IN BUSINESS

1,000 PERSONS HELP
STATE OBTAIN DATA
IN RURAL DISTRICTS

Strives to Do for Farmer
What Statistical Services
Do for Industries

Madison—(AP)—Detailed farm information has been given thousands of Wisconsin farmers during the past year by the Wisconsin Crop Reporting Service. The work will go on in 1937 with W. H. Ebling, assistant to the dean of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, at its head. Mr. Ebling will succeed Paul Nyhus, who has left for China to take up an agricultural post. Jointly operated by the state department of agriculture, headed by J. D. Jones, Jr., commissioner, and the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture, directed by W. F. Callander, the service has provided farmers with business-like reports on crop conditions.

In the assembling of agricultural statistics information is regularly received from about 1,000 crop reporters located throughout the agricultural districts of Wisconsin and thus the regular information furnished by these experienced men is one of the basic sources of dependable information in this work. In addition much detailed farm information is furnished by the assessors who are required by law to make a survey of farm production and development.

TO HELP BUSINESS
"The crop reporting service," a report from the bureau said, "tries to do for agriculture what the many statistical services used by the American business groups are going for these interest. Every business has its statistical service and forecasts which are used regularly in planning business ventures, and in order to place agriculture in a position where it can likewise plan future moves with a full knowledge of the facts. The federal government has developed the crop reporting service which attempts to give farmers basic information upon which they can rely in planning their production. In the past the farmers have had to make their own estimates as to what crops are most desirable to grow and the acreage to produce, but with the development of crop reporting better information is available.

"This system consists of a well coordinated organization throughout the United States with headquarters at Washington and by means of it crop conditions are promptly reported and current information is becoming more and more available. The Wisconsin Division of this service is one of the most highly developed in the country. It was organized by Mr. Callander who was followed by Mr. Ebling, now Assistant Chief of the Crop Reporting Board at Washington. The third man in the field was Paul O. Nyhus who recently resigned to enter the foreign service.

"The federal government has developed this work to a point where not only the current state and United States crop pictures are available, but efforts are now being made to develop it on a world wide basis. Since agricultural markets are dependent upon a world conditions it is highly important that more complete information be available on the subject. The work of Mr. Nyhus in the Orient will probably concern itself more particularly with finding factors regarding possible foreign markets of American farm products. Those in which particular interest is being taken at the present time by Mr. Nyhus are tobacco, cheese, cotton, fruit, rice and others.

THESE COWS MUST HAVE THEIR MUSIC

Radio, Individual Drinking
Cups and Attractive Stalls
Cheer Bovine Family

Knoxville, Tenn.—Making cows contented is now the major duty of dairymen, judging by the effort of J. G. Sterchi, here, who employs radio, individual drinking cups and attractive stalls to bring cheer and happiness to his herd.

In the old days the cows had their private talking machines, but Sterchi, fearing their discontent if they were not given the latest innovations, supplied a radio.

Dance music from New York supper clubs is, of course, the cows' favorite tune. However, Sterchi also finds that such songs as "My Old Kentucky Home" and the "Goodbye" cheer them when they're in a somber mood and make them give a sweeter milk.

Happiness and contentment is the motto of this L. V. line. Not only is a cow's esthetic yearnings satisfied with selected music, but the barn and stalls are furnished attractively to suit the requirements of the bovine tenants.

The water which the inmates of this home for contented cows drink from individual cups is from the same spring which the Sterchi family use.

Sterchi is continually catering to the whims of the herd and says that he is now considering hanging cages of canary birds in the stalls to sing for the cows and make things more pleasant.

Carpenter Holstein Herd

Dale Farmer Second Breeder of Purebred Holsteins in Outagamie-co

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Hortonville—The pioneer breeder of purebred Holstein cattle in the town of Dale and the next to first breeder in Outagamie-co is E. G. Carpenter, route 1. For 30 years Mr. Carpenter has enjoyed the rewards of having one of the best looking, best bred and best producing herds in this vicinity.

Among the sharpest disappointments was the loss of 27 choice animals two years ago as a result of the T. B. clean-up that swept over the county at that time. Among the principal rewards were daily contact with

DAIRYMEN LEADERS

SANITARY MILK

Don't Need Laws to Regulate Dairying if Dairymen Do
Their Part

W. F. WINSEY

Appleton—At the banquet of creamery operators, cheese factory operators, dealers and shippers of dairy products of the Fox river valley in Convention held on Wednesday, 60 representatives of these allied industries were present together with dealers in dairy products from a few of the large cities and representatives of the state dairy department. C. E. Lee, formerly assistant dairy commissioner of Wisconsin and now with the Gridley Dairy Company, Milwaukee was one of the principal speakers and H. C. Carson, head of the state dairy department was another. H. E. Jahnke, Gr. N. Bay, acted as chairman. Among the other speakers were Mr. Jahnke and Anton Ivelin, Hilbert.

The purpose of the banquet was to give those engaged in any branch of dairying a chance to become acquainted, to determine lines of contact in their separate activities and form plans for a permanent cooperative union that might work in the interest of the producer of milk, the manufacturer and shipper of dairy products and meet the demands of the consuming public for quality standardized dairy products.

As the principal step taken toward a permanent organization, a resolution was adopted authorizing the appointment of a committee of five by the chairman to draft a constitution, a set of by-laws, standards of sanitation in the production of milk and in manufacture and distribution of dairy products, to make suggestion with respect to the appointment of a field man and to report at a later meeting at the Conway hotel to be called by the committee. As members of that committee, the chairman appointed H. E. Jahnke, Green Bay; Anton Loeber, Hilbert; Hubert Fausbender, Kaukauna; Clarence Arnold, Big Sausage; Roy Egan, Shawano.

Other organizations of the kind proposed for the Fox river valley are already organized and in operation in Polk-co, Barron-co, White Hall District and Baraboo valley, according to Mr. Larson.

Although legislation in the interests of dairying was proposed, Mr. Larson said: "There is not much need of legislation. It is better for you factory men to agree on a certain program of improvement of milk standards—clean milk, milk houses separated from stables, the proper cooling of milk, clean containers, prompt delivery of milk—and employ a local milk inspector if necessary. If you do these things you will have the state department behind you and for this and other reasons, dairymen and producers will soon thereafter fall in line and see the advantage of producing milk under sanitary conditions.

"At the present time Wisconsin stands at the top of the world as a dairy producing state," said Mr. Larson. "Then at another point in his talk this: 'One third of the cows in the state are actual tramps and produce nothing; another third is merely paying their board and the best third is making the money in dairying and making Wisconsin the greatest dairying state in the union. So along this line, the chance for improving dairying in this state is practically unlimited."

In the course of his talk, Mr. Lee said: "All dairymen are interested in the production of quality goods. Who is to blame for the kind of milk care-less farmers are delivering to factories? Farmers are not to blame. When they are told what the requirements are, they will meet these requirements. The milk business belongs to farmers. But they are supporting more factories than is necessary and they find it expensive. Some farmers can deliver milk to any one of five factories in their neighborhood. Why should we have a lot of parasites in the dairy industry?"

"Get behind a movement to pass a law preventing the acceptance of any dairy product by one dairy interest that has been rejected by another, to prevent any man from selling as a sediment tester of milk unless he uses the last drop of milk in a container in making the test and to prevent any man from operating a factory unless he takes a sediment test at least once a week."

choice, good looking animals, satisfactory production records, remunerative sales of surplus animals and the drawing of a large percentage of the premiums offered yearly by local fairs at which he was always a large exhibitor.

WINS MANY PREMIUMS
Last fall Mr. Carpenter showed nine head at the Hortonville fair and seven head at the Seymour fair. At the Hortonville fair he drew eight first premiums, two seconds and one third. At the Seymour fair, he drew 12 first premiums. Among these premiums were two grand champion awards at Seymour and one at Hortonville. One of his heifers, a few years ago, Pet Johanna, at three years of age gave 610.3 pounds of milk, 27½ pounds of butter, with a butterfat test of 3.55. Her best milk production record for one day was $5.50 pounds. This was the heifer that was awarded a silver cup by the First National Bank, Appleton. She was the first cow ever tested in Mr. Carpenter's herd. He has never belonged to a cow testing association and does nothing now but official testing.

Replacing the lost herd, Mr. Carpenter now has a herd of 37 cattle. To make up his herd, he bought two cows and three heifers from Christensen Bros., Waupaca-co, a heifer from the Harvest farm, Mayville; five cows and heifers from George Gallinger, Oshkosh, one cow and one heifer from Edward Race, Omro, one cow from Daniel Kolosko, Manawa three cows from Joseph Hoskins, DePere, and one herd sire from Philip Matthes, Thorp.

FAMOUS HERD SIRE
The herd sire, King Ormsby Pierette, Pens 5th, is a 70-year-old and a 900-pound grandson of the famous K. P. O. P. and his highest year-record grandson ever born in central Wisconsin. His two nearest dams averaged 101.19 pounds of milk and 21.355 pounds of milk in one year. His two nearest dams averaged 1,059.94 pounds of milk and 24.313 pounds of milk. His dam's sire, an 860-pound bull, was bred by J. Erickson. He is bound to reproduce the great breeding behind him, for his ancestors have all reproduced the new cows in Harvest Matador, Aagatha. At three years of age, in a seven day test, she produced 25.05 pounds of milk with an average butterfat test of 3.44. Best day's milk was 90.4 pounds.

Royalty Pierette Ormsby, another new cow in this herd, at 5 years of age made 20 pounds of milk and gave 45.12 pounds of milk testing 3.49 per cent. The best day's production of milk was 70 pounds.

Nellie Forbes De Kol at seven years of age gave 54 pounds of milk and made 22.72 pounds of butter. Test 3.47. Best day's milk record 80 pounds.

Johanna, Colantha, Cornucopia Queen, at one year and eleven months, gave 408.9 pounds of milk and made 18.48 pounds of butter in seven days. Her average test was 3.62 per cent and her best day's milk record was 62.2 pounds.

In premiums, at the Seymour and Hortonville fairs, Harvest Matador Aagatha, one of the above mentioned cows won $52 each year for three years. Mr. Carpenter is milking only five cows now but he expects six to freshen this month. As a result of experience, Mr. Carpenter has worked out a number of satisfactory rations for his cows. He is now feeding alfalfa hay, mangles ground oats and silage in varying proportions.

LEPLA PUREBRED
GUERNSEY HERD HAS
MANY FINE ANIMALS

Good Production Records Result from Feeding Carefully
Balanced Rations

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Appleton—Harry Lepla, route 2, after doing a profitable dairy business with good grade cattle for a number of years started raising purebred Guernseys in 1907. A few years ago, he turned a well developed head over to his son, Victor. The herd now consists of 20 milkers and 20 head of young stock.

Although the Leplas do not believe in the plan of forcing cows into big production, unless the owner does so to increase his sale of surplus animals, for the reason that forced production of milk usually breaks the cow down in a few years, their herd is able to show some very good records. This is the result of the feeding of the regular balanced ration that goes daily into the manger of each cow in the herd. The buildings are well filled this year with hay, silage and grain. Up to Jan. 1, they were feeding pea silage to their cattle. The Leplas have now changed to corn silage, but they think more of pea silage as a feed for dairy cattle than ever before. During the summer months they fed very little silage and no grain. They are now feeding, beside corn silage, alfalfa hay and ground grain in the proportion of two parts bran and two parts barley, two parts corn and two parts alfalfa.

PLEASED WITH ASSOCIATION
The Leplas plan to have half their cows freshen in the fall and the other half in the spring so that they may be milking the same number throughout the year. They are very well pleased with the plan on which the Outagamie County Cow Testing association is founded because the results are not designed for publication but only for the herd owner's private help. Last year they belonged to this organization.

Last year the Leplas sold six bulls under six months old and twelve heifers. They raise all their calves for their own use and for the purebred market. The average milk production last year was 7,219 pounds per cow, the average test was 4.7 per cent and the average yield of butterfat was 347 pounds.

FARROWING SOWS
MUST HAVE CLEAN
PENS; PROPER FEED

Plenty of Exercise for Animals Needed; Balanced Ration Essential

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Keeping the pens clean and dry and giving the occupants plenty of exercise and the right kinds of feed are among the most important things that can be done for sows that are to farrow in the spring. Exercise may be given on these animals by separating their sleeping and feeding places. The proper combination of feed may be determined from personal experience or that of other breeders. It is generally agreed that corn, not supplemented with other elements of a balanced ration, is one of poorest feeds known for such sows.

There is so much hit-and-miss feeding of such sows among breeders and so many cases of making them exist on the refuse from all corners of farm buildings and farm, that it would be difficult to determine what sort of a ration each breeder is using or to select the best rations to recommend to other breeders who wish to make an improvement over their feeding practices of the past. A much easier and more reliable way is to place before hog breeders a few of the balanced rations for pregnant sows. These have been worked out by experts of agricultural departments of universities, as a result of experiments covering wide intervals, extended territory, all kinds of conditions.

RECOMMENDED RATIOMS

One of these experts says that skim milk, mixtures of linseed meal, middlings, tankage and alfalfa hay should be used to supplement corn in a feed ration for sows to farrow. Here are a few good rations for pregnant sows: (1) Corn or ground barley 70 parts; Alfalfa 20 parts; tankage 5 parts; skim milk 20 parts; pounds per head daily. (2) Yellow corn 50 to 60 parts; skim milk 50 to 70 parts; salt. (3) Ground corn 25 parts; ground oats 25 parts; ground barley 25 parts; alfalfa meal 20 parts; tankage 5 parts; skim milk, 2 to 3 pounds per head daily; salt.

The rations for yearling or older sows are the same as the above except the corn which should be increased about 25 per cent.

The same authority says: "A good ration for weaning pigs is as follows: Corn, self-feed; tankage, self-feed; middlings, self-feed; skim milk, 2 to 3 pounds per head daily; pasture; a mineral mixture composed of equal parts by weight of salt, finely ground limestone, bone meal, and wood ashes self feed. In place of tankage one could use a mixture of linseed meal and tankage in the proportion of 3 to 7. Good pastures for hogs are alfalfa or clovers."

Summit, 4-year-old, 63 pounds of butterfat, testing 4.4 per cent, and with the best day's milk 46 pounds.
Queen's Bo-Peep of Summit, 4-year-old, 49 pounds of butterfat, testing 5.4 per cent, with the best day's milk 30 pounds.

Virginia Lou's Yodme of Summit, 4-year-old, 46 pounds of butterfat, test 4.2, and best day's milk 31 pounds.
Gladys Verdome of Summit, two-year-old, 32 pounds of butterfat, test 5.4, and best day's milk 19 pounds.

Stella Mabel of Evergreen, 4-year-old, 66 pounds of butterfat, test 4.7, and best day's milk 47 pounds.
Fladla's Buttercup of Summit, 2-year-old, 30 pounds of butterfat, test 4.7, and best day's milk 21 pounds.

The present herd sire, Farm Peerless, 2 years of age, came from the F. J. Ruepping farm, Fon du Lac. His dam has a record 776 pounds of butterfat and his grand dam on sire's side has a record of 796 pounds of butterfat.

Pruning out the dead wood in the fall is the best method of controlling fire blight of apples and pears, advises Dr. A. L. Pierstorff, fruit specialist of the New Jersey State College of Agriculture.

IF BACK HURTS
BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the wastes and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

DECLINE IN NUMBER

U. S. FOOD SUPPLY

Columbus, O.—By supplanting horses with machinery, enough food has been released in Ohio to feed 400,000 more people, according to J. I. Falconer of the Ohio State university.

The horses on the farms have decreased 253,017 in numbers and according to estimates released 695,880 acres of crop land. City horses have lost 130,041 of their numbers and released 418,611 acres from producing horse feed. The 30,000 tractors have released 49,500 more acres, Falconer points out and concludes: "We have 1,184,021 acres of crop land released for producing food by the decrease in the number of horses."

Illiteracy and the 1930 Census is the title of a pamphlet received this week by the chamber of commerce from the United States chamber at Washington, D. C. The pamphlet tells of the illiteracy in the country in 1920 and the hope for improvement when the next census is taken in 1930. Wisconsin is rated 2.24 in illiteracy with Iowa low with 1.1. "Thirteen states have a lower rate than Wisconsin. The high rate is in South Carolina, which has 18.1 illiteracy. The states are improving annually, the pamphlet said.

CABBAGE MARKET
SHOWS BIG DROP
WITHIN FEW DAYS

Dealer Says Decline Resulted
When Growers Began to Rush Crops to Market

BY W. F. WINSEY
Special Farm Writer

Greenville—"Cabbage prices are all shot to pieces," said H. H. Schulze, a local cabbage dealer. "I told you that is what would happen as soon as growers began to rush their crops to market. On Thursday and Friday last week, we were paying $21 a ton and on Monday and Tuesday this week, the price was $16. We shipped out one car of cabbage, on Monday and another on Tuesday."

Shelton—"The price paid growers by dealers for cabbage on Tuesday was $18 a ton, according to E. C. Axte, a local representative of the Hartman Fruit and Produce company, St. Louis. "Six carloads of cabbage were shipped from this station on Monday and three cars on Tuesday. Six cars a day is now the usual thing. While a few growers are hauling cabbage to market, most of them are holding back for higher prices. Just before Christmas, a considerable quantity of cabbage was delivered to the storage plants, however, because prices were fairly good and there was the seasonal demand for money," said Mr. Axte.

REPORTS ARE FAULTY

"Growers are reluctant to report the exact amount of cabbage in private storage and for that reason, published reports of the quantity on hand are not reliable. Often a grower will deliver a load of cabbage and claim it his last load. Afterwards, if prices advance, he will rush in a carload. As an estimate, about one-half the cabbage grown in this vicinity has been delivered to the storage plants, but even with that one dealer said that he had a list as long as his arm of growers who hadn't disposed of a cabbage yet."

Mr. Axte estimates the amount of cabbage grown in the territory about this village, this season, at 14,000 tons and the amount now in storage at 1,100 tons. Forty cars of cabbage have been shipped this season from station. Estimates do not include early crop. The cabbage crop not equal the crop of last year.

HOLD BACK, IS ADVISED
Appleton—"Because the year weak, I have been advising growers to hold back their crop of cabbage for a time," said William C. Harms, cabbage dealer. The paid growers Wednesday, Jan. 6 $16. Last season on Jan. 2, we were paying from $37 to $40 a ton slump in the market came on Jan. 12 and lasted two days when we paid growers $50 a ton."

Mr. Williams estimates that tons of cabbage were grown last season in the territory about this city. Four hundred tons of this crop is in private storage on farms and tons are stored in this city. Hundred cars of cabbage already been shipped out of Appleton this season, according to Mr. Williams expects the cabbage market to up soon.
